WHEELS TURN IN CLEVELAND

Republican Hosts Gather in City for Convention

Californians Arrive Today; Will Back Chapman

Plank-Pushers Busy Trying to Put Over Plans

morning is expected to place in nomination for the Vice-Presidency the name of Charles C. Chapman of Orange county, prominent Orange grower, agriculturist and philanthropist, and delegate-at-large to the convention.

Preparations have been made for a parade of the Californians down the main avenue and the local women's reception committee is prepared to show special attention to Mrs. Florence Collins Porter of South Pasadena, California delegate-at-large, who will be one of the two women to second the nomination of President Coolidge, and to the other women of the California delegation.

The Republican National Committee has completed without a hitch the platform of the party, but after a furious fight of oratory delivered largely in a southern accent, various contests in the platform committee have been held to elect a platform.

Immediate interest of the delegates and those interested in the convention is the platform which probably will be presented Wednesday. Charles B. Warren of Michigan, Ambassador to Mexico, who is to serve as chairman of the resolutions committee, will arrive in Cleveland tomorrow morning.

Dr. Butler announced today, and will begin considering various platform proposals at once.

COOLIDGE PLANS
The platform is expected to follow the wishes of President Coolidge in stressing the need for economy in government and for governmental efficiency. A plank conforming to the President's ideas in international relations likewise will be emphasized.

Scores, if not hundreds, of interested individuals are here in an effort to insert this plank or that in the Republican platform and each will be given a chance to present his views. Those favoring a modification of the Volstead Act are working strenuously, but not more than those who do not favor modification. Organized labor seeks a special plank, industry and commerce seek wider recognition, crusaders against the narcotic will want recognition and encouragement, and organized labor and government work is going forward to obtain for woman greater participation both in party affairs and in government.

Leaders of the woman's movement assert that the rules committee is prepared to submit a report recommending that hereafter the Republican National Committee consist of two members from each state, a man and a woman.

CRAFTSMEN MASON CLUB CELEBRATES

First Anniversary of Organization Observed With Fitting Program

One of the most interesting events in local Masonic circles in recent months was the celebration of the first anniversary of Craftsmen Lodge, P. A. M., held in Holbrook Temple, First and Chicago streets, last night.

The organization is the outgrowth of The Times Masonic Club and 75 per cent of the membership and all the officers are employees of The Times-Mirror Company. One year ago last night the organization was made up of twenty charter members. The roster at the end of the first year contains more than sixty names.

Superior Judge Burks was the principal speaker at last night's celebration. H. E. McConnell, Master of the lodge, presided. The judge chose "Service" for the topic of his address and developed the theme that more efficient service between man and man was the solvent for the many social troubles causing the present unrest.

C. J. McDonald of The Times circulation department, in charge of The Times Junior Players, presented Tommy Wonder, 9-year-old vaudeville artist, in an original number, "The Dance of the Dolls," and little Miss Thelma Dell Daniels in a series of well executed acrobatic stunts and dance numbers. Through the courtesy of the Southern California Music Company, Arthur C. Thomas presented Coleman Goetz, composer and monologist, in original numbers. Miss Pearl Toepfer, violinist, and in government. ## LABORER KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Pretty Stepdughter Found Lying Near Death

Note Left by Slayer Offers No Reason for Act

Guest Discovers Bodies Two Days After Crime

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)

OAKLAND, June 7.—Evidence of a double tragedy believed to have been enacted Thursday night came to light today when the bodies of George Peterson, 35 years of age, a ranch laborer, and his wife, and the unconscious form of the 15-year-old stepdaughter were found, the victims of violence, near their home at Pleasanton, near here.

A note left by Peterson indicated he had beaten his wife to death, tried to kill his stepdaughter, and was badly beaten and shot himself. No motive has been revealed.

The stepdaughter, Edith Jacobson, evidently had lain unconscious since Peterson's attack. She was taken to a hospital.

The girl had been graduated from the Pleasanton Grammar School Thursday night, and her parents had taken her to a party. The tragedy is believed to have taken place after their return home that night.

Peterson had been employed on a ranch here, but acquaintances said he appeared to have had a fight with his wife and her mother, and there was a well-founded report that he and his wife once had money. Peterson's note was a guest who had been invited to the party. It stated he was about to kill his wife and stepdaughter, and himself, and asked to be "excused." No reason for the act was advanced.

The stepdaughter is described as a girl of unusual beauty. The tragedy was discovered by a guest who had come today to spend the week-end with the Petersons.

establish itself firmly in various departments of the government. After the Armistice Lloyd George saw certain continued lines of power in preserving the coalition; and he preserved it until he was overthrown by the Conservatives in the autumn of 1922.

He served his own ambition well for the time being, but by dividing it. Coalition meant compromise on every important question. The Conservatives demanded much more of the Liberals than they could stand such a process.

Asquith bailed the coalition and carried the party organization from the Lloyd George faction. The Welshman tried to form his own party but could not find sufficient followers. So when the Conservatives got through with him in 1923 all he had left was a handful of Liberals who remained true to him; and with these, he was finally forced to sue for peace.

I have gone into this review of the fortunes of the Liberal party because of the bearing of the circumstances on the present dramatic situation. ## CRUDE PLOT IN SLAYING TOLD

planned to kill for excitement, casually looked over as prospective victims the children of the city. So far no such issue is in sight. All Britain is lining up in support of the long-established, highly-respected colony of wealthy Chicagoans of which the families were leading members.

Loeb at 2:20 o'clock in the afternoon, accompanied by a crowd of children at play, and the two youths with a pair of field glasses scrutinized them for a prospective victim but, having plenty of time, waited for a more favorable opportunity.

Once they fixed on John Levinson, 9-year-old son of a wealthy attorney and, for the best part of two hours, they watched for the moment when he should break away from his playmates.

Loeb's confession indicated that Robert Franks owed his death almost entirely to chance. Robert happened to cross the street at a point where they could draw up alongside him.

They lured him into the car with an invitation to talk about a tennis racket. Loeb said that Leopold struck the boy unconscious with the chair almost as soon as they had turned off the street, where they picked him up, and that the gag that killed him was a rag stuffed down his throat by Leopold.

They had no special plans for concealing the evidence; hunger stopped them long enough in their drive with the body of the victim to get lunch. The bits of circumstantial evidence mostly were carried back to their homes.

Some of the clothing was burned in the Loeb furnace.

Later at Leopold's home, the youths spent some time in conversation with the elders and friends before starting out to dispose of more evidence.

The typewriter seemingly did not worry them as a particularly dangerous piece of evidence, until some days after the killing when the newspapers had been filled with information about how to trace the machine. Then they took it out of a trunk at Leopold's home and hid it in the body of the victim to get lunch. The bits of circumstantial evidence mostly were carried back to their homes.

BRYANS CONFER ABOUT POLITICS

W. J. and Brother Charles in Chicago Gafest

Middle West Holds Election Key, Says Governor

Nebraska Executive Points to G.O.P. Upsets

CHICAGO, June 7.—The Bryan brothers held a fraternal conference in Chicago today. William Jennings Bryan and his brother Gov. Charles W. Bryan, one of the many candidates for the Democratic nomination for President, were gathered at one of the downtown clubs. Politics, it goes without saying, was the chief theme at the family council.

Gov. Bryan combined business with pleasure during his day's trip, by negotiating for a supply of gasoline wherewith to force a reduction of prices in Nebraska and also for coal contracts for next fall—last winter the executive of fices sold coal to 180 cities and towns in the State and hammered prices down. During the day William J. Bryan called on Mayor Dever at the City Hall for an informal chat.

TALKS OF ELECTION
As Gov. Bryan views the situation, the election next fall will hinge on the vote in the Middle West. In the recent primaries he carried all the 1925 precincts in Nebraska except six for renomination by a Democratic party for Governor, while as an involuntary candidate, he got 78 per cent of the vote in the Farm Labor primaries, carrying all counties but two.

"How is the national convention at New York shaping?" the Governor was asked.

"Things are chaotic at present," he replied. "Just now, the commentators and observers in the East seem to be talking about the ability of this candidate and that candidate to get delegates, without considering the ability to get votes in the election."

"When the convention gets down to business, however, the real question that will have to be considered is the vote to be carried in November. In my judgment the Middle West will determine the election."

"And what the Middle West does will depend on the platform and conditions offered. Party ties amount to nothing out West nowadays. The voters are not interested in mere party names but in policies, issues and what the candidates have demonstrated to be their positions during their public careers, and how they have identified themselves on issues."

CITES SOME UPSETS
"Look at what has happened. Here's a block of Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska, all normally Republican territory by margins of various size, yet all of them with Democrat governors. They were elected because they were more progressive than the Republican candidates. In my own State, for instance, I was elected Governor in a State that went Republican by 16,000."

"More than in any other campaign, the Middle West in my opinion, will be the determining factor this year. And further, what a third party movement may do, will depend on the platforms and candidates put up by the old parties. What the West demands is progressivism."

Gov. Bryan returned to Lincoln tonight and William J. Bryan left for Minneapolis to spend Sunday.

JURY VOIDS WILL AFTER LONG TRIAL

Decides Aged Spinster's Union to Dr. J. H. Miller Not Legal Marriage

The will of the late Mrs. Mary Moore Miller, in which she bequeathed 51 per cent of her large estate to her husband, Dr. Jared H. Miller, was found invalid by a jury in Judge McClellan's court yesterday. The jury found the marriage of Dr. Miller and the deceased was illegal. All her estate will be divided among the other heirs, represented at the trial by William H. Moore, who testified the will. The trial over the validity of the document has been in progress for more than three weeks.

The case was given to the jury Friday noon but the twelve men and women failed to reach an agreement on the many issues until 7 p.m. yesterday. Attorneys in the case submitted 113 special interrogatories for the jury to rule upon.

The estate around which the case revolved consists chiefly of mining properties in Michigan and has been variously appraised at from $200,000 to $2,000,000.

CASA GRANDE CELEBRATES

Whites and Indians Attend Dam Bill Fete

Wires Telling of Signing of Measure Received

Note of Congratulation is Sent by Governor

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
PHOENIX, June 7.—Casa Grande today had several thousand white visitors and as many more from the Pima Indian Reservation, to join in celebration of the passage of the San Carlos dam appropriation bill.

During the exercises, added enthusiasm was caused by receipt of telegrams from Senators Cameron and Ashurst and Representative Hayden telling that President Coolidge had just signed the bill. There was local ratification of the suggestion, made by Senator Ashurst at the White House, that the whole project be named the Coolidge, as the Salt River project bears the name of Roosevelt. One of the Gila Valley in the system on the Gila River already bears the name of Ashurst. Senator Cameron's wire said:

"Today marks the successful conclusion of the long, patient fight and means for Arizona a new empire and the righting of wrongs against the Pimas of a half century's duration."

Gov. Hunt, who is in Nogales assisting in the reception of President Obregon of Mexico, wired Mayor Peart of Casa Grande that "All Arizona rejoices with the people of the Gila Valley in the accomplishment of this milestone of progress, and that the friendly Pimas and Papagos have been given this recognition."

Judge O. J. Baughn presided over the exercises and addresses were made by Judge Kirk T. Moore, president of the Tucson Chamber of Commerce; Indian Agent A. F. Ducloux of Sacaton, President of the Price Chandler Chamber of Commerce, President Fred T. Colter of the Arizona High Line Association, Representative T. Kilcrease of Pinal county, Mayor L. B. Whitney of Phoenix and Judge F. O. Smith, representing Phoenix commercial organizations. A native Indian brass band from the Phoenix Indian School furnished music, while Indians from Sacaton furnished most of the sports program.

ASK GRANT REMOVED
At the concluding session of the State encampment, Veterans of Foreign Wars, resolutions were adopted demanding the removal of Maj. L. T. Grant of the San Francisco district of the Veterans' Bureau, Arizona's Congressional delegation was praised for helping the ex-service men in the past session. Favor was expressed for the plan for reinstatement of a veteran's insurance without physical examinations, while protest was made against retention of pay while in hospital or a rating of less than having any total disability before arriving at a point where vocational training may be taken up.

CLUB PICKS NEW CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Mrs. Florence Moore Kreider is the newly-elected president of the Friday Morning Club chosen last Friday. One other competitor, Mrs. Arthur S. Weir, first vice-president also sought the office.

The election closed a campaign which has been a continuous performance of retreating and advancing candidates beginning six months ago. There have been six different candidates for the chief office. The primary election the first Friday in May eliminated all but two.

Mrs. Moore has been a member of the club for twenty years, her name having been handed in by Mrs. Severance, one of the founders and the first president of the club when Mrs. Kreider was a college girl, well known as Florence Moore. Since that time, Mrs. Kreider has traveled extensively. She is a woman of culture and education, a record of her long line of professional men and women. Her father was well known a generation ago in this city, and Mrs. Kreider was born here. She was an active worker in the Red Cross during the war when she limited her club activities to the minimum. Since that time her chief interest has been in the drama section.

Chosen to serve with Mrs. Kreider are Mrs. Henna H. Kerkhoff, first vice-president; Mrs. Benjamin Goldman, second vice-president; Mrs. William Walker, Blayden, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles S. Burnell, corresponding secretary, and Miss Helen Louise Kimball, treasurer.

Mrs. Weir faced defeat with optimism and said, "Since the Friday Morning Club does not care for me for president my chief ambition is to become a newspaper woman. I have enjoyed the work of press chairman for the local biennial board so greatly."

LEGION TO WELCOME QUINN

Commander to Visit Los Angeles Monday on Nationwide Tour for Organization

Preparations for a reception were under way yesterday with the receipt of news by local officers of the American Legion that National Commander John R. Quinn will visit Los Angeles Monday. He will remain one day and will then continue on a nation-wide tour of centers of American Legion activity.

A reception committee headed by Linton Smith, issued a call to members of the Legion to assemble at the Santa Fe depot Monday at 2:15 p.m. to meet the train on which the national chief will arrive. All posts in the county were notified.

ESORT TO BILTMORE
Following the greeting at the station, National Commander Quinn will be escorted to the Biltmore Hotel. He will be the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Mary Louise Cafe at 8 p.m. by past and present post commanders. At 8 p.m. the chief event of his visit—a mass meeting of the legionnaires in the Hollywood American Legion Stadium—will be held.

EXPECT CELEBRATION
Members of the reception committee predicted that the mass meeting in the stadium would turn into a celebration of the final passing of the soldiers' bonus with National Commander Quinn receiving the applause for his efforts to bring about its passage.

Besides Chairman Smith, the following are serving on the reception committee: Mendel Silverberg, William Heurst, Don Claffin and J. W. McKinley.

GUARDS SEEK OCEAN VICTIM

Girls Report Man Drowned in Long Beach Rip Tide, But Search is Futile; Seven Others Saved

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
LONG BEACH, June 7.—Life guards and police were keeping a close watch on the beach tonight for the body of a man thought to have been drowned during strong rip tides which swept the bathing beach here today. The reported drowning occurred, according to Gwendolyn Sallis and Jean Stevens of 296 East First street, at the foot of Molino avenue, where a man disappeared after swimming out beyond the breaker line.

The children's cry for help brought other bathers, several of whom declared to life guards and police they saw the head and arm of a man disappear, as though going down for the last time. Life guards in a patrol boat circled the spot and dove several times but were unable to find the body.

THREE MEN SAVED
Three young men were saved from the rip tides on the East Beach shortly before noon. J. R. Bray of 1616 Erie street was rescued by life guards at the foot of Cherry avenue and Donald Jordan and Sidney Dukelow, both of Van Nuys, were rescued at about the same time from the surf at the foot of Orange avenue.

STOCK SALE BY LYNCH OPPOSED

Better Business Body Hits Negro Club Plans
Former Promotion Schemes Recalled in Plea
Corporation Commissioner to Investigate Scheme

A protest has been filed with the Corporation Commissioner by the Better Business Bureau of the Los Angeles Advertising Club against an application filed by one Michael J. Lynch to sell stock in what purports to be a projected negro country club for a site on Ventura Boulevard. It was announced yesterday that no permit will be issued until a thorough investigation is made.

Ferris B. Miller, manager of the Better Business Bureau, has clashed with Lynch before on some of the latter's promotions, which have included the Hollywood Motion-Picture Enterprises, the Classic Film Actors' Agency and the Motion-Picture Service Bureau. Complaint regarding the projected country club was made to Mr. Miller by a negro realty dealer. Mr. Miller made a preliminary investigation and filed his protest with Commissioner Daugherty, based in part upon his past experiences with Lynch.

LYNCH IS COMPANY
"It's an enterprise," answered Lynch, "that will promote anything in the line of motion pictures." "And who constitutes the company?" pursued Barker. "Isn't it true that you do?" Lynch admitted that he did. The inquiry shifted to the employment agency. "I told lots of people," testified Lynch, "that they didn't have a chance in the pictures, that they'd better get a job dishwashing or something."

RECLAMATION DISTRICT ROW TAKEN TO COURT

SUIT FILED TO RECOVER FEES PAID TO FORMER BOARD MEMBER
SACRAMENTO, June 7.—Suit was filed in Superior Court here today to recover warrants given to Peter R. Gadd, engineer and former member and secretary of the State Reclamation Board, and Charles F. Metteer, local attorney, by the trustees of Reclamation District No. 1001, Butte county, as a fee for collecting $140,892 for the district. Joe Blattman, land owner in the district, is the plaintiff in the suit and the defendants are Gadd, Metteer, the Reclamation District and the trustees of the district. Gadd and Metteer achieved notice several months ago when it was declared before the State Reclamation Board that they had obtained an exorbitant fee for collecting the district's claims against the State. Interested parties asserted Gadd, through his connection with the State board, used his influence to collect the amount. Gadd declared the fee was paid for his services as an engineer.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—A petition by State Controller Ray L. Riley for a writ of mandate to compel the State Board of Accountancy to turn over certain fees received to the general fund, was denied today by the State Supreme Court. The court held that under a law enacted in 1905 the board was privileged to keep all fees received for its own support. The controller has asked for the transfer of fees received from July to November of last year under the reformation legislation passed by the last Legislature.

Carrie Chapman Catt Predicts World Peace is Certain to Come Through Gradual Steps

Woman suffrage presented problems thirty-five years ago far more difficult than those of the world peace movement today, said Mrs.
Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Suffrage Association, and for many years the leader of the suffrage movement in this country.

Mrs. Catt, who is at the Billings convention, moved from her home in Washington, D. C., to address the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.
She is devoting herself principally to the promotion of world peace.

"World peace will have to be worked out along practical lines and in a spirit of common sense," she said. "Nobody can answer satisfactorily the question as to why nations should fight. Most people will answer that they always have fought and always will, but that is obviously inadequate. Nevertheless, that seems to have been the general attitude of mankind to the war since the beginning of time, and nations have conducted themselves in harmony therewith."

"Now thinkers all over the world are beginning to seek a reason for war, and they are gradually coming to the conclusion that no sufficient reason exists, and that the fundamental cause lies in an arbitrary state of mind. The problem, therefore, as I see it, involves the adoption of a means to change men's minds on this question."

Mrs. Catt believes that change will take place gradually through a process of enlightenment in response to the causes and the disappearance of the multitude of fallacious notions that now obscure the subject.

"It will be found eventually, as the movement for peace progresses, that controversies can be settled by arbitration, and that methods of settlement will gradually supercede armed conflict," said Mrs.
Catt. "It may take a long time, but I am convinced the world
finally will be away with war entirely."

Dos automóviles abandonados y despojados de sus certificados de ayer tarde cerca del sitio donde la policía del puerto había confiscado en la mañana un camión abarrota-do de licor, y las autoridades creen que se va a ponerlas sobre la pista de toda una cuadrilla de matuteros de licor.

Los coches abandonados se encontraban cerca de uno de los muelles municipales del puerto.
En uno de ellos se encontró una pistola automática de calibre .45, y en el otro sesenta libras de aguardiente. Habían arrastrado de sueños los certificados de matrícula, pero dejados las placas de licencia.

Con éstas y con el revólver creían anochecer las autoridades tener hilos suficientes para dar con los dueños de los autos, que se creen sean los jefes del grupo, y que se supone estaban dirigiendo la carga del licor en el camión cuando llegó la policía.

El referido camión contenía no-venta cajas de whisky escocés y de champaña, y está convenida la policía que este cargamento fue traído por una goleta de dos mástiles que está anclada a la al-

Ya se han confiscado antes otros dos cargamentos procedentes de ese barco.

Gray Hair—Stop It!
Don't delay. When the first few gray hairs appear, restore their natural color, life and luster with Co-Lo, the amazing discovery made by Prof. John H. Austin, over 40 years a hair and scalp specialist.

Co-Lo is preferred by thousands because it is so dainty and easy to apply. It is a wonderful liquid—clear, odorless, greaseless; has no sediment and does not contain lead or sulphur.

Co-Lo cannot be detected like ordinary hair tonics and dyes. It will not wash or rub off, will not injure the hair or scalp, will not cause the hair to split or break off.

Co-Lo makes the hair lovely and beautiful—it restores the original color to gray and faded hair perfectly. Always a success.

Co-Lo for every natural shade of hair. Ask your druggist which shade you require—A6, for black and dark shades of brown; A7, for jet black hair; A8, for medium brown shades; A3, for light brown, red and auburn shades.—[Adver-

Stirs OppositionCitizens Ask Commission to Resign

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)
ALHAMBRA, June 7.—The local political waters refuse to be quieted. The forced resignation of George M. Lorraine as city manager, announced Thursday, is intended, it is said, to appease certain factions which have been clamoring for the City Manager's scalp, and to avert a recall, failed of the desired effect, to all appearances. Instead of calming the situation, the act of the City Commissioners in virtually removing Mr. Lorraine seems to have left them in a worse position than before.

The commissioners now find themselves in the embarrassing position of being presented with a petition asking for their resignations. Immediately following the resignation of Mr. Lorraine, the group who have been agitating a recall of the commissioners appeared with copies of a petition asking that the commissioners resign and call a special election to elect their successors.

Banners displayed on the streets today invite signatures to these petitions, of which there are many copies in circulation. Volunteer workers are being organized to secure signatures. The petition reads:

"We, the undersigned citizens of the city of Alhambra, believing that the best interests of our city will be served by your resignation as commissioners and the calling of a special election to elect your successors, do respectfully but firmly request that you and each of you do resign, and call such special election to elect your successors; your resignations to take effect immediately upon the election and qualification of your successors."

According to James B. Ogg, local attorney, who has been active in the recall movement, the petition will be presented on Monday night at the regular meeting of the commission. Ogg declares that affidavits of intention to file recall petitions have been prepared, but are being held in abeyance pending the result of the commission's meeting Monday.

He has a wife and family here. It was announced by the company this morning that all purchases of stock made through Feeley would be made good.

BURGLARS BUSY IN PASADENA HOMES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
PASADENA, June 7.—Three Pasadena homes were ransacked by thieves during the early morning hours, the police assert, and a quantity of valuables, including rings, watches, clothing and automobile tires, were stolen.

While robbing the last of the three houses the two burglars were seen by a night watchman, who immediately alerted the police.

Although several shots were fired, none found the mark, it is believed.

The homes of William P. K. Dyringer, 327 South Holliston avenue, P. K. Dyringer, 304 Franklin street, and J. D. Cox, 40 Oak Grove avenue, were entered by the thieves.

BONDS SURE TO CARRY

SIERRA MADRE, June 7.—

That the $100,000 school bonds which will be voted on in this city Monday will carry practically unanimously is indicated in the partially complete returns of a straw vote held by the Chamber of Commerce during the past week.

Out of 330 returns ballots only two were against the bonds. The only thing which might defeat the proposition now is the overconfidence which contributed to its defeat at the last election.

On account of the lack of voting facilities at that time, hundreds of voters stood in line for hours and finally, believing the issue would carry, left without voting, while the small opposition stayed and defeated the proposition.

SANTA BARBARA, June 7.—

"Such a thing has never been known in all the annals of this Police Court," said Judge Risor this morning as he accepted under protest the fine of Ralph Hersey, wealthy Santa Barbara man, who had been hailed into court on a minor traffic violation charge and who insisted on charging himself with another offense.

Hersey was cited for violating a parking ordinance and appeared in court to pay off that fine this morning. When the details were completed he told the judge that he had parked his car more than thirty minutes in one place and stated that he thought he ought to be charged with it. That's all right, said the judge, I'll warn you that time. No Hersey replied that broke the ordinance and I want to pay another fine. BABY BOOTLEGGERS TO FIGHT
FAIL TO FIND
SCHOOL SITEBoy Accused of Selling Liquor Prepares to Wage Battle in Court(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
ORANGE, June 7.—That Clyde Dorsten, aged 18, this city, termed by authorities as the "baby bootlegger" plans to make a court battle to clear himself of liquor charges against him was indicated here today when it was learned that the youth had been arraigned before City Recorder G. H. Morrison at Seal Beach, yesterday.

Dorsten, charged with both possessing and selling liquor, pleaded not guilty to the dual counts, and his hearing was set for Tuesday, June 17, at 2 o'clock.

The lad was arrested several days ago by City Marshall M. E. Jenson and Motor Officer George Peterkin, who hailed him into court in connection with the case of Frank Atkinson, this city, who was charged with intoxication. During Atkinson's hearing, Dorsten was arrested.

Both father and son, together with William Collins, alias this city, are scheduled to appear as witnesses against the youth, it was said. The officers originally questioned Atkinson's son, then the father was taken into custody, and upon giving information leading to Dorsten's arrest, was given his liberty.

According to the authorities Atkinson claims Dorsten informed him that he could get all the liquor he wanted from Seal Beach bootlegger. The father and son then accompanied Dorsten to the Seal Beach beach, where they were arrested. The father was charged with possession of a saloon of whisky, disposing of it to his father.

When young Atkinson saw that his father had imbibed too freely, he told his mother, the information resulting in Atkinson's arrest on the intoxication charge. The liquor was found near Atkinson's bed, it was reported.

Like old trench days, the father and son were arrested. The father was charged with possession of a saloon of whisky, disposing of it to his father.

EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH
BAKERSFIELD, June 7.—The city of Bakersfield and the Santa Fe Railroad have been granted an extension of time on the extension of the Santa Fe Railroad Commission's order to construct a subway under the Santa Fe tracks at Union street, according to special advice to Bakersfield City Engineer W. J. Clark today.

The time on the commission's order, made last year, expires today. The state board, however, has extended the time until July 22. City Attorney E. F. Ryan, who recently petitioned the commission on behalf of the city for a short time extension, has been waiting for notification of the state board's action. A twenty-day extra period came as a last-minute relief.

Between today and June 11, according to City Engineer W. J. Clark, the work of installing the subway will be completed. It is considered probable that the Santa Fe will construct the subway, although the city must advance for side for the work.

Bakersfield's share of the way will amount to $14,700. The recent order of the railroad commission, which was estimated at approximately $47,000, is the desire of the railroad company that the city bear half of the estimated cost.

The Railroad Commission, which appealed to the city by the city should bear just half the cost as it was estimated. This amount is $14,700.

PORTLAND (Gr.) J. McCann's sacrifice fly with one out, and the bases full in the last of the ninth, scored Distel with the winning run of a 5-to-4 victory for Portland over Oakland here today.

After Portland had scored one in the second, Artlett, of the Oaks, hit a home, into the centerfield bleachers, to give the home team a 2-to-0 lead.

Portland's home team was leading 3-to-0 in the top of the ninth when the home team was holding a 2-to-0 lead over the invaders from Ohio. Then in the fourth the Reds opened a bombardment on Carlson that chased him from the hill and sewed up the game. Score:

Tennis Championship Court Will Be Dedicated Today

DECIDE TITLES AT LOCAL CLUB

Harvey Snodgrass Clashes With Westbrook

Men's Singles and Doubles Events Carded

Mrs. W. M. Henry Carries Off Women's Crown

The new championship tennis court of the Los Angeles Tennis Club is to be dedicated this afternoon with final rounds in the club championship, exhibition matches in which Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Mrs. Ethel Sutton Bruce will take part, and a housewarming after the matches. One championship was decided yesterday when Mrs. W. M. Henry won the women's singles title from Mrs. Sue Severance, 6-0, 6-2. Harvey Snodgrass meets Walter Westbrook for the singles title today and Snodgrass and Westbrook will tie with Sindorf and Warren for the doubles.

Mrs. Henry was in real championship form yesterday afternoon and made an unexpectedly quick work of Mrs. Severance, who was quite unable to cope with the speed of Mrs. Henry's severe forehand and backhand shots. Mrs. Severance made a stand at the start of the second set and held matters even at 2-all. When Mrs. Henry won her third game on her own service.

SNODGRASS FAVORITE
The program for today will start at 2 o'clock sharp with the men's singles. Snodgrass is a slight favorite despite the fact that Westbrook defeated him on their last public appearance at the L.A. High courts. Snodgrass has a knack of playing his best tennis when there is something like a championship at stake, but he has never yet succeeded in downing Westbrook without a battle.

The men's doubles will find Southern California leading doubles team, Westbrook and Snodgrass, pitted against the veterans, Eugene Warren and Ralph Sindorf. The latter pair upset the pair of Snodgrass and Westbrook when they crowned Godshall and Ferrandini in the semifinals, but Westbrook and Snodgrass are regarded as legitimate favorites today.

Snodgrass and Westbrook won from Bob Varrel and Miles Heinke in a doubles match, by 6-1, 6-2. MIXED DOUBLES EVENT
An exhibition mixed doubles match will be played between the singles and the doubles, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Roy Hornidge playing Mrs. Ethel Sutton Bruce and Ed Berry. These are two first-class mixed doubles teams and will put up a sparkling exhibition unless all signs fail. Tea will be served following the matches.

The Taft Realty Company won a close contest from the Hollywood Postoffice last night in the Hollywood Twilight League by a score of 6 to 1. The pitching of Walker for Taft was a feature. This gentleman improves with every game and should cause George Eastman's gang a lot of trouble in the big game Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The second contest between the Hollywood Ice Cream Company and the Hollywood Sash and Door Company was a walkaway for the ice cream lads; they won 14 to 4. Manager Butler of the Sash and Door notified the umpires that he was playing the game under protest, and in a written protest to President Carleton, he protested the game on the grounds that Hollywood were using professional ballplayers.

Next week there should be some mighty hot contests in the Twilight League. Eastman, who is leader of the league will meet two mighty good teams this week, and if these teams do to Eastman what Hollywood says they are going to do, an undertaking establishment will open next to George Eastman's main branch on Highland avenue.

Firestone Leads on Speedway With Five Record Breakers

When the race driver selects his tires he does so realizing that his life and chances for success depend upon them. It is significant that all of the ten money winners in the Indianapolis race were Firestone shod. Firestone, using gum-dipping and other special processes, has developed tires to such a high degree of efficiency that at Indianapolis, May 30th, the following drivers broke the world's record for 500 miles over this brick track, making many rounds at over 100 miles per hour.

Never before were tires put to such gruelling service, where it was necessary for every ounce of rubber and every fibre of fabric to work in perfect unison with every other part.

Driver	Time	Miles per hour
Joe Boyer—L. L. Corum	5:05:23.51	98.24
Earl Cooper	5:06:47:18	97.99
Jimmy Murphy	5:08:25:39	97.27
Harry Hartz	5:10:44:29	96.55
Bennett Hill	5:11:07:00	96.46

Leadership in Every Day Service

Millions of motorists are profiting by the lengthened service of Firestone tires. Scores of unsolicited testimonials, from every part of the country, lay emphasis on the long mileage Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are delivering—which builds leadership in service, safety and economy.

Cab and Bus Line Leadership

Taxicab and bus line operators must of necessity select the tire that will give them the best and most economical service. The largest taxicab companies in the five largest cities in the United States use Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords exclusively, building for us leadership in taxicab service. One fleet alone, the Yellow Cab Co. of Chicago, uses over one half million tire miles a day. This affords Firestone tire experts a great, practical laboratory for rapid and thorough test of every refinement they develop.

Pioneering Built Leadership in Truck Tires

Firestone for years has been first to develop tires and rims complete which would meet the heavy trucking loads, great strains and demand for traction. By originating and carrying forward the Ship by Truck movement, and establishing Ship by Truck bureaus in all large cities, Firestone helped to speed up highway transportation and reduce costs.

Balloon Tire Leadership

Firestone's latest and major contribution to motoring is the low air pressure or Balloon tire. This, the original full-size Balloon, was made practical by the special Firestone Gum-Dipping process, insulating every fibre of each cord, adding great strength and stamina. The Balloon Gum-Dipped Cord was tested for millions of miles before being offered to the public. Firestone has also simplified the application of full-size Balloon tires to your car now equipped with high pressure tires by designing a special unit consisting of tires, tubes, rims and spokes. This provides a complete assembly, designed for your car, and applied by any dealer at a very low cost.

Stockholder Employees and Specialized Tire Plants

Every Firestone employee is a common stockholder whose entire efforts are concentrated on one thing—the building of better tires, giving the greatest service and economy to the car owner. Such concentration makes every man an expert in his work, developing the best chemists and engineers, who have the backing of unlimited resources and who are actuated by a spirit of pioneering and a determination to continue to add to Firestone leadership.

Leadership Against British Rubber Restriction Act

Attacking the unsound and uneconomic character of the British Rubber Restriction Act limiting the exportation of rubber from the great plantations of the Far East, Firestone was the one large tire manufacturer to take up the cause for the car owner. Soon after the agitation was started for America to produce rubber under its own control, the cost of this important raw material was reduced and the prices of tires were brought back to a normal level.

Firestone's activity led the government to investigate the practicability of growing rubber under American protection. Today there is every indication that American capital will soon begin an independent and unrestricted production of crude rubber.

Dealer Leadership Through Tire Quality and Service

BATTLE FLEET'S SCOUTING

FLYERS LEAD BUSY LIFE

Pilot Planes All Day and Overhaul at Night Is Program While Ships Hold Target Practice

Flying all day and overhauling all night. Chasing torpedoes, spotting fall-of-shot, towing target sleeves and carting photographers about to get the aerial side of the thing. Look over the daily program of Scouting Plane Squadron Two, Aircraft Squadrons, Battle Fleet.

It will give you the impression that the crew of a scouting plane must be the hardest-worked outfit in the fleet. Likewise that these fellows are as seagoing as the destroyer crews.

The largest scouting plane squadron on the Pacific, VS Squadron Two, has just been attached permanently to the Battle Fleet and hereafter will operate directly with the battleships and destroyers at sea. It is now based at Los Angeles Harbor, under command of Lieutenant-Commander P. M. Bates, with the U.S.S. Aroostock as tender.

The twenty-three pilots and 150 enlisted men of the squadron have, with thirteen planes, just completed a month of what is declared to be the most valuable assistance ever rendered the Battle Fleet by aircraft in gunnery practice and battle maneuvers.

BUSY ALL DAY

The six giant H-16 type seaplanes based at this port have been in the air almost daily from sunrise to sunset, aiding the battleships in gunnery exercises, while off San Diego the other half of the squadron has been equally busy retrieving torpedoes fired by the destroyer squadrons in torpedo practice. Overhaul of the planes during this arduous period has by necessity been done at night.

The squadron will be equally busy during the coming ten days, a period that will be climaxed fittingly on the 11th inst., when they put forth their greatest efforts in the combined Battle Fleet in force practice.

While every dreadnaught in the fleet is simultaneously firing its turret guns and intermediate batteries at the scores of destroyers endeavoring to destroy the battleships with torpedoes, launched through a smoke screen, the seaplanes will be dropping high above this general service to the fleet, the busiest units of the combined armada.

Some of them will be spotting fall-of-shot for range correction to the battleships, others will carry Navy photographers and film men, others will retrieve the torpedoes fired by the destroyers, and still others will tow long canvas sleeves at which the antiaircraft batteries of the battleships will fire. In addition to which, the seaplanes will lay down an aerial curtain of titanium (non-toxic) smoke around the destroyers that they may come in unobserved to attack the battleships. It will be a busy day for the eyes of the fleet.

HAS MANY DUTIES

The primary mission, Commander Bates explains, of a scouting squadron is to scout for enemy vessels. Its secondary mission, however, is general service to the fleet, including recovery of torpedoes, towing targets for gunnery exercises, operating in bombing formations, as well as flying for photographic and experimental work. The efficiency of VS Squadron Two will be tested thoroughly on July 1, next, when the entire force hopes off from San Diego on a flight to Seattle, making stops for fuel at various points.

SEEK ACTION ON DAYLIGHT SAVING BILL

Civic Bodies Hope City Council Will Heed Plea for Ordinance Passage

Prompt action for a daylight-saving ordinance is the hope expressed by the various commercial organizations in their response to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Commercial Board of Los Angeles, according to E. G. Judah, the board's general manager, who has been gathering evidence to lay before the City Council early next week.

"Our members are five to one in favor of a daylight-saving measure," said Mr. Judah yesterday. "In addition to answering 'Yes' or 'No' as indicated on these cards, many of the associations have sent us letters. There is one from the Southern California Grocers' Association, from the Los Angeles Wholesale Paper Dealers' Association, from President F. H. Pettinelli of the stock exchange, who says his organization favors a State-wide daylight-saving movement. The Los Angeles Desk Company not only wrote us a personal letter, but included a petition in favor of such a measure signed by every one of its employees. Here is a letter from the Motor Car Dealers' Association which reads: 'I have no hesitancy in saying that our entire organization, including employees, is in favor of the adoption of a daylight-saving ordinance. It is a measure which will be of great benefit to the community and to the business of the city.'"

"We have had the fullest endorsement of practically every organization with whom we have conferred, even to the Southern California Edison Company through its general manager, H. H. Ballard. It is our belief that the City Council will be armed with overwhelming evidence of favorable sentiment, so that we may hope for early action."

PASTORS BACK PENSION PLAN

New System Perfect, Declare Presbyterian Leaders

Proposal to Aid Ministers and Their Dependents

Project to be Discussed at Glendale Convention

"By far the most perfect system for the support of aged and infirm ministers that ever has been devised by an organization of ecclesiastics and laymen."

That is the opinion expressed yesterday by Dr. Guy W. Wadsworth, executive secretary of the Presbyterian board of Christian Extension in Los Angeles, concerning the Service Pension Plan recently adopted by the Presbyterian General Assembly.

The new plan, presented by the Laymen's Committee at Grand Rapids, Mich., May 24, last, proposes, first, the raising of $15,000,000 throughout the country, which will have no effect on the present sustentation plan, except that the interest from this fund will assure each aged minister an annual salary of at least $600.

The Service Pension Plan is similar to the system recently inaugurated in the Episcopal Church, with these exceptions: The annuity starts at 65 years of age instead of 60; there is no compulsory retirement; provision is made for the payment of 10 percent of the minister's salary instead of 7-1/2 percent; the minister and his church, 7-1/2 percent to be paid by the church, in addition to the minister's salary and 2 1/2 percent to be paid by the minister out of his salary.

CONVENTION AT GLENDALE. "The Synod of California, including all Presbyterian churches in this state and Nevada, will conduct its next convention at the First Presbyterian Church of Glendale, July 24 to 31, inclusive, and the new pension plan will be discussed at length," said Dr. Wadsworth. "I am hoping that this Synod will be the first in the country to adopt the plan. We have no central church government which enforces this method and any church or synod is free to reject it, but I do not believe that the wisdom of the proposition will appear favorably to practically every Presbyterian Church in the country. Briefly, the plan means an adequate life insurance, with small payments, for the minister who accepts it while the payments by the membership of blue-ribbon churches also is comparatively small.

"The new plan provides for a graduated pension, or salary for each aged or infirm minister, according to the average salary he has received while in ministerial work. It makes it unnecessary for an aged minister to beg for bread and relieve the church membership of that feeling of the necessity for charity toward men who have served faithfully and long—a feeling which is not accompanied by a sense of shame. In other words, the new plan is good business—and good business is as much a phase of religion in the church as in the fields of industry and commerce."

PLAN HEARTILY FAVORED. Dr. Henry T. Babcock, associate secretary of the Church Extension Board with Dr. Wadsworth, also announced that he heartily favors the new pension system. "The underpayment of ministers has been a moral and economic crime," said Mr. Babcock. "For a life of service to humanity the minister has received less than that paid to ditch-diggers. However, the ditch-digger is paid (and we could not get along well without him) his worth to society is certainly not greater than that of the average minister."

"That the new plan will stimulate Presbyterian ministers and make them 'breathe a little easier' when considering their future and the future of their families, is the opinion expressed by Dr. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. "Personally, I would have preferred the sustentation plan in effect in Canada, which provides an equal annuity to all retired ministers, but the program adopted by our general assembly is practically ideal and I am in favor of it," said Dr. Walker.

The service pension is available to all ministers, missionaries and other official church workers, as well as their widows and children. It is available at the age of 65 years without requiring retirement. A widow's pension will be one-half her husband's pension, with a minimum yearly income of $300. Minor orphan children will receive $100 yearly during their minority.

RELIEF TO BE CONTINUED. The grants of the relief department to those now on the relief roll and other beneficiaries will be continued, the rights and interests of the present sustentation plan will be carefully preserved and they may continue their sustentation membership in addition to accepting the new plan, and the money received from the ministers and churches under the new plan, together with the $15,000,000, which the Laymen's Committee expect to raise, will be handled by the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustentation, the official name of which body is to be changed to the Board of Pensions.

MOTHER ASKS AID IN SEARCH FOR CHILDREN

After hunting without success for fifteen years for her three children—now all grown—Mrs. Mildred Talbot of 124 1/2 Tenth street, asked The Times yesterday to help her in her quest. According to Mrs. Talbot's story, the children were separated in Rapidan, Va., in 1905. The children, Mary, Milton and Hale, 7, 9 and 11 years of age respectively, were with their father. The mother has tried all these years to locate them. Then years ago she got trace of them at Fort Worth, Tex., but arrived at that city after the children had moved on. She has heard nothing of them since, except that all have been married.

THUGS SLUG VICTIM

Three thugs, two of them armed with gas pipes, entered the home of G. Young at 1504 East Fifteenth street early yesterday morning, slugged Young and robbed him of $30. Police are seeking the bandits.

Rev. and Mrs. I. G. Sigler

REV. AND MRS. I. G. SIGLER recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Edwin O. Lenox, and son, Elmer G. Sigler, Hollywood.

In Barton, Vt., Dr. Sigler, a graduate of the Cleveland Medical College of Ohio and who at that time was practicing medicine, married Miss Anna L. Merrill, who had been a student in Wesleyan University and had become a teacher in the public schools. She also taught art and music in the College of New Castle, Pa., and other schools in the East.

Dr. Sigler entered the ministry, Mrs. Sigler assisting him while he was circuit rider in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky.

In the early eighties they came to California, which has since been their home. A few years ago Dr. Sigler retired from the Methodist conference of which he had been a member for many years.

HUGE FLEET TO SEEK TUNA

Fishermen Predict 800 Boats Will Start Out This Week; May Catch Totals 2,000,000 Pounds

Eight hundred boats, the largest fleet in the history of the local industry, will be active out of Los Angeles Harbor during the tuna season, which opens this week and continues until late in September, when the high-priced fish will have migrated as far north as the Santa Rosa straits.

During May, 143,014 pounds of tuna, of the yellowfin and yellowtail varieties, were brought in by the local fleet, mostly from Southern waters. Fishermen announce that large schools of bluefin tuna are appearing off the local coast, however, and heavy hauls are expected during the coming fortnight.

HEAVY MAY CATCH

Approximately 2,000,000 pounds of fish were delivered to the market during May by the fleet, according to figures just compiled by the Commercial Fisheries Bureau of the California Fish and Game Commission.

Barracuda, caught for the fresh market exclusively, led the list strongly with a total catch of 173,481 pounds. The month's haul by species and pounds, follows:

EXPECT GOOD SEASON

Fishermen and cannery alike expect one of the best tuna seasons in recent years, according to J. M. Rosen of the Commercial Fisheries Bureau. Tuna, in both the retail and wholesale markets, is in great demand with virtually all of last year's pack sold out, cannery report. Favorable weather conditions also point to a good season on the banks, according to fishermen.

DOROTHY TIEFEL WINS
PIANO IN CONTEST

Dorothy Tiefel, 9-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cora Tiefel, 2917 Trinity street, is the winner of the baby grand piano in the contest inaugurated by the Southern California Music Company to determine the most popular girl or boy in the public schools. Little Dorothy has been playing the piano for one year and has appeared in concerts at churches and schools. Helen Clair Dudley, 319 South Coronado street, and John Hallinan, 1019 West Twenty-first street, were announced as second and third, respectively.

RIBBON KEY CASES

The ordinary leather key case is neither pleasing to the eye nor the touch of woman. It is not so much that the case is masculine looking that woman dislikes the serviceable little article, but that cheap leather bordering the case with woman's fancy. And yet the key case is almost indispensable for it saves the wear and tear of the keys the lining of the purse, which is nothing more than a lace frill around the long sash, is a demure little bow of two-toned satin ribbon—in coral and sky blue, apple green and silver. Stiff blue and canary with streamers that fall to the floor.

TO EMPHASIZE INDUSTRY

Importance of Southern California as Center of Food Manufacturing to be Shown at Grocers' Convention

The importance of Los Angeles and the Southwest in the food manufacturing and distribution field will be emphasized during the period of the first annual Pure Food Show, which will open at the Armory, Exposition Park, next Saturday, to continue nine days.

It will be the aim of the show, which will be given under the auspices of the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association, to educate California housewives and the public generally on the progress being made in the production of food in the Pacific Southwest.

With thousands of newcomers settling in Southern California each year, in general being acquainted only with nationally advertised products, it is pointed out by promoters of the show that its exhibits will be of great value in teaching Southern Californians, particularly those of more recent residence, that their district is fast becoming a center of food manufacture and distribution.

EXHIBITS COMPLETE

Virtually all the larger distributors and producers have had samples engaged for weeks and it is asserted that when the exhibits are thrown open to the public they will comprise a complete representation of the interests concerned.

One of the ways in which the lesson of pure food will be taught will be a food contest in which various food products will appear as characters on a stage and make business appeals to the audience, telling them how they should be prepared and when eaten. Food experts will make talks daily and demonstrators will be on hand to answer questions and to show the great business of feeding the world will be included in the program.

Members of the grocers' association are to be considered a committee of the whole to invite their patrons to attend, and the fact that the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers will be held here at the same time will add to the interest and attendance, so that it is now predicted that at least 250,000 persons will visit the exhibition.

TO SHOW EASTERNERS

"The Southern California Retail Grocers' Association, with hundreds of members throughout Southern California, is solidly behind the show," said Secretary E. G. De Staute yesterday. "The show will not only be educational and interesting but decidedly out of the ordinary. The grocers fully appreciate the splendid response upon the part of the manufacturers and distributors of food products that have taken place. We are assured of success, and we want to show the Eastern visitors who will be here for the national convention that Los Angeles is one of the greatest food centers of the country."

Daily programs are now being arranged. Addresses by those who know their subjects will be given frequently. The show will be a part of each day's program. Two special trains are coming from New York along with visitors, many of whom will be persons connected with the manufacture and distribution of foodstuffs and all of whom will be interested in the lines produced in Southern California.

Secretary De Staute and his associates have offered the Prudice Building at Seventh street and Central avenue, also headquarters of the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association. They are kept increasingly busy taking applications for space and directing arrangements for the exhibits and program.

Number Found Often in Western Ranger Football Program

The mystic number "13" holds no terrors for the Western Rangers. It is revealed in the announcement of the first annual western potlatch which will be held here this month.

Not only will the event take place on Friday, the 13th inst., but it will be held on the thirteenth floor of the Chapman Building and the members of the Rangers are at the head table. If the committee in charge of arrangements can do it in other "13's" it will be done.

John Steven McGroarty, whose page in The Sunday Times magazine is eagerly read every Sunday by thousands of readers, and Kenneth C. Beaton will be guests of honor.

In addition to members of the Rangers, chiefs, guides, directors and counselors, the parents of the members of the Rangers are invited to attend. Reservations may be had by telephoning Garfield 5789.

Police Report

Courtney Collins, 15-year-old asserted pyromaniac, has confessed to setting fire to twenty-one garages and homes in the southwest section of the city within the past few months, police announced yesterday.

The boy was arrested a few days ago after fifteen fires in the neighborhood in which he lived had been traced to him, according to the police. All the fires were extinguished quickly and but little damage was done.

Courtney has been turned over to Juvenile Court authorities.

SMALL CHANGE
 The Coinage Committee in Congress recommends minting a 1/2-cent coin in silver and nickel, which will bear the face of President Harding. It may be well enough as a souvenir or memorial, but there is no demand for such a coin. Nowadays it wouldn't even buy a nickel cigar.

MARKED DOWN
 Chief Vollmer tells the Council that he has gone over the situation carefully and found that his department cannot efficiently function without the addition of 498 new patrolmen. He doesn't ask for 500. He can get along with the minimum of 498. This has a thrifty ring and carries its appeal.

MUCH IN LITTLE
 When you come to think of it, the 2-cent stamp and the 5-cent street-car ticket are about the cheapest things we have. The 2-cent stamp will bear your personal message with celerity for a distance of 3000 miles or more and the nickel will move your body for a distance of thirty miles in comfort, safety and speed. Can you beat it?

HELIUM VERSUS HYDROGEN
 The American Chemical Society has decided that the Dikmude and Roma disasters might have been avoided if helium instead of hydrogen had been used. The disasters would certainly have been avoided if such impractical methods of air cooling had been handled as President Coolidge handled the Navy's plans to go ballooning for the North Pole.

SUN SPOTS CHANGING
 A leopard cannot change its spots, but the sun does so frequently. The Navy Department blames the changing spots in the sun for the continued cold over the whole Atlantic region, for the reduction of rainfall in California and for a good many other things. California's rainmakers blame the people, rather than the sun spots, for the present scarcity of water. People wouldn't pay for rain when the raining was good.

SERVES 'EM RIGHT
 A court having held that the Senate quia has no legal standing, Harry Daugherty may feel well warranted in turning his back on it. The investigation had resolved itself into a political inquisition for the purpose of discrediting the Department of Justice and the former Attorney-General is inclined to decline to furnish further fuel.
 Under the circumstances many citizens will approve the Daugherty attitude.

BY THEIR FRUITS
 Traffic experts have served notice that it will take 200,000 freight cars to handle the fruits of California this year. To begin with there are 15,000 carloads of cap-sauloupes and watermelons being shipped out of Imperial Valley. It will call for nearly 80,000 cars to carry our citrus fruits East.
 It is also declared that our grape shipments this fall will exceed 50,000 cars. The rest will be made up of apricots, peaches, figs, plums and other gracious gifts of nature.
 The massive total does not include the other thousands of cars used in bearing our dried and canned fruits forth to the world.
 These are merely the fresh-fruit shipments that call for refrigeration. The whole makes a very juicy story. By our fruits we are known.

MINUS THE TAIL FEATHERS
 Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is reported to be as mightily pleased with the results of the German elections that he contemplates returning to that dear Berlin. If he is well-advised he won't. In the height of his pomp and power he once visited the Court of St.
 James. He was shocked at the unkindly demeanor of his brother monarch, Edward VII, and read him a royal lecture. In a gorgeous uniform, bedecked and bedecorated, the Kaiser struck a pose and declared, "Why, to my people I am a god!"
 And Edward, with one of his famous smiles, replied, "Yes, William; but you know you wouldn't be if they saw you every day in a tweed suit." That is how the German people will see the ex-peacecock if he is foolish enough to return.

TOO HAPPY
 A rich man's son committed suicide the other day and left behind this instructive epitaph: "I wish the world to know that I committed suicide because I was too happy. I got what I wanted in my life."
 He was mistaken. Our Declaration of Independence tells us the truth. Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—not happiness is man's inalienable right. The rich man's son considered the pursuit—as he supposed a thing accomplished. But this can never be.
 He had only found satisfaction. Happiness, like wisdom, crowns the peak of a shining mountain. Our mission in life is to keep on climbing. If we wander from the trail, lured by the dull hilltop of satiety, we sacrifice our inalienable right. Whoever holds himself to be "too happy" admits failure and courts disaster. Because the shining mountain touches the heavens.

EDUCATING MORAL IDIOTS

All the decent minds of the country have been startled and sickened by an unimaginable crime committed by members of the student body of a great university. Two brilliant idiot students for more than a year made a "study" of the most brutal method of committing murder on a harmless and inoffensive boy. Notwithstanding their attainments in chemistry, their facility in several languages and their so-called scholastic attainments, none but a moral idiot could have thought the beastly thing they did was smart.

This sickening tragedy would not be worthy in itself so much consideration if it did not throw three of the greatest factors of civilization upon the screen. These three factors are home training, money and education. When rightly administered they are so important as properly to be called pillars of civilization. A nurse who had spent about two years in the home of one of the murder monstrosities said that he did not lace his own shoes till he was 14 years of age. She also testified that he had a wonderful mother who, presumably, died while he was yet a child. She said he was smart mentally, but was allowed to grow up with the dominant idea that somebody must constantly be in his service and must be exploited for his own selfish pleasure. Was there any father in that home during those years? Or was the man who sired him simply a business man who came and went? Did he try to show his child the difference between right and wrong? The nurse says, "If the boy's mother had lived the terrible deed would have been impossible." Is the mere breeding of a boy the end of a man's responsibility in a home? Why should not a father as well as a mother teach his child the high sanctities and responsibilities of life?

The factor of money in our civilization is to be measured by the wholesome influence it has on human life. Does it make its possessor more law-abiding? Does it make him a better neighbor? Does it make him more useful to the honorable business institutions of his community? Does it make him a more reliable American citizen? If it does not do one or all of these things it is a deadly peril. Money is like any other great power, such as fire, electricity or water. If misapplied it is a menace. There is a heart hunger which money never satisfies. As proof, witness the list of suicides of millionaires' sons and daughters. Out of respect for the innocent we withhold names which we know. Babson is surely right in his constant insistence that rich men and women do a wrong and dangerous thing to their sons and daughters in turning over indiscriminately riches which these children have not earned. Few such sons and daughters are either wise enough or unselfish enough to make proper use of such wealth.
 Doubtless noble and wise sons and daughters of wealth could be pointed out. But there are others. Their records are on the news pages.

Education. How many glittering generalities are recorded in its name. Was not Nero educated? Yes, but not in moral conscience and righteousness. Was not Benedict Arnold educated? Yes, but he had very little sense in patriotism and conscience. Was not the late German Emperor educated? Yes, in art, science, literature and even in theology. But few criminals outcrimed him in human history. We have arrived at a time when the word education must be definitely qualified. Of what kind is it? In what direction does it lead? What is the student going to do with his sharpened weapons? Is he going to wreck a bank? Is he going to hold up a train? Is he going to set fire to a city? Is he going to murder his neighbor? Is he going to dynamite a great news plant that stands for a square deal in the labor world?

What does it mean to be "educated"? Let some dictionary man speak out. Let some university president tell us whether it means to respect the Constitution of the United States, or to sneer at certain parts of it which you do not personally like. The supporters of our schools, colleges and universities have a reason and a right to ask the presidents and instructors in these institutions what they really mean by education. We know the etymology of the word. We must have something better than that. We know it means "lead out," "lead forth." But Chicago and the rest of the country are asking now with a new emphasis, "What is it that the university is going to lead out—a moral idiot or a sane citizen with a conscience?" If sensible men are to be asked for millions to endow the Chicago University and other schools, these men are going to ask with fresh interest and emphasis,
 "What sort of citizens are you going to train in your university? Are you going to lay more stress on chemistry than you do on character?"
 "Are you going to fan the central fires of the universe called God and the human conscience, or are you going to have sneering professors who make light of these everlasting verities?" The men who give money to educational institutions have a right to ask these questions.
 And it is their duty to demand a satisfactory answer.

Do we not know that a book written by a professor of one of our northern universities and distributed by the thousands since the World War began had patches of poison thought in it which would undermine Christian citizenship? Prof. Todd's book belittled the social teaching of Jesus as compared with that of certain German propagandists. On certain of our high school buildings is written in conspicuous letters,
 "The education of the youth is the foundation of the State." Well, that altogether depends on how and in what they are educated. For forty years Germany educated her youth to be military marauders and murderers. The education of her youth was the undoing of the State. If you mean education in honor, in principles of justice, in the square deal, in kindness, in neighborliness, in a clean conscience, in righteousness, in patriotism, in first-class Christian citizenship, then, and not otherwise, will "The education of the youth" be "the foundation of the State."

What avails chemistry without character? What use has mathematics without manhood? Who can trust the sharp mentality of a moral idiot? We have all had our pity stirred by Dr. Hale's story of "The Man without a Country," but the man without a conscience is worse.

Wanted: Schools that teach the essential worth of the human soul.
 Wanted: Colleges that put first in importance conscience and character.
 Wanted: Universities that regard great souls as of more importance than great sprinters. The citizens who support these educational institutions have the moral, the financial and the civil right to expect from them "First things first." Real people are getting tired of education, so called, that stops short of the real thing. And education that stops short of conscience, character, and courageous citizenship is not the real thing.
 It is even a dangerous thing. The duller the knife in the hands of a fool the better. It is dangerous to furnish an idiot with a loaded gun. Let the guardians and the conservators of our Christian American civilization beware of the educated moral idiot and of any institution that fosters conditions to produce him—or, her.

MATERIAL DAMAGE SMALL
 Now that the strain caused by the foot-and-mouth epidemic in California is nearly ended and the major part of the quarantined territory has been released we can take stock of the situation in a spirit free of bias or hysteria.

Sam H. Greene, secretary-manager of the California Dairy Council, an important member of Gov. Richardson's Washington committee, has reviewed and reported on the general damage the State has suffered from the visitation and finds the material loss is not heavy. The money value of the cattle destroyed is only about 24 per cent of the money value of the herds that have escaped the contagion, so that the setback to the whole business of cattle raising in California has been slight.

Of course, some owners of valuable herds have been hard hit. These will be compensated, as far as possible, by Federal and State assistance. But the loss of live stock to the State as a whole is only a small fraction, that one year's good breeding season will entirely overcome. By official figures there are still cattle in California untouched to the value of $187,890,000.

When we consider that the total value of last year's agricultural produce in California has been given at $555,000,000 and that the loss of live stock is only a small round number, it is very plain that a large and-mouth disease was entirely unnecessary.
 In fact, Mr. Greene declares that it is no more than a frost or a flood or a drought has caused in former years without resulting in hysteria or attracting such universal attention.

At the same time, it was essential that the authorities took drastic measures to meet a situation that threatened to become serious if not kept well in hand. These measures were bound to have a psychological effect on the people who read of herds being destroyed and who knew that they were being inconvenienced and hampered by the restrictions and precautions adopted. And certain exaggerations were the natural consequence.

But that is now happily over. California has reason to congratulate itself that official action was prompt and that the people, acting in unison, have come out of the trouble with so small a material loss.

WHISKERED BABY
 Russia had produced a wonder-child.
 This child, a boy 4 years and 10 months old, is several times a prodigy. He has the strength of a man, both physically and mentally, it is said, a deep bass voice and a fine growth of Santa Claus whiskers. Russia is celebrated for whiskers. Besides the Bolsheviks she also produced the Porcupine man and the Dog-man, Adrian Jettichew, whose entire face, neck and shoulders were covered with a thick coat of hair.

The Prohibition party wishes to wind up its affairs and quit, but does not know how.
 There are always some of the old-timers who want to be nominated for offices to keep the machinery running.

RIPLING RHYMES
THE SECRET

I've been on earth a long, long time, my head is white with age's rime. I've heard the rusty deathbell chime for friends, in solemn tones; and many who were borne away to sleep forever and a day had often paused a bit to say, "You'll never make old bones." The rules of health I have defied, I've let the diet doctors slide. I never walk when I can ride, all exercise I hate; I've borne around a load of fat; athletic games would stare them and say, "King Death will come to bat if you don't cut down weight." "Come, play my game," the golfer cries; "to back in fallow is unwise; the fat man always up and dies twelve years before his time; I chase a ball or bill and daisies, and I am hard as three-inch nails;
 I'm feeling like the Prince of Wales, like Hector in his prime." But hark, again the death bell clangs, and gurs who made these health harangues are traveling, in sheeted galleys, to bargain-counter tombs; while I, who've never fenced or sparred or climbed a tree or walked a yard, am resting in my wealth of lard, amid the orange blooms.
 I hate to stir myself at all and so I lean against the wall—and that's the secret, after all, of living many years; do just as nature may suggest; if you are lazy, sit and rest; if energetic, hump your best, as hump the brindled steers. WALT MASON.

THIS IS THE DAY
 Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, died at his home, the Hermitage, near Nashville, Tenn., in the year 1845.
 The British government passed
 "Orders in Council" in the year 1793, seriously hampering American commerce. Commanders of British warships were instructed to hold up all neutral merchant vessels carrying supplies to French ports. This act caused intense indignation in America. The French passed similar laws in reprisal and so brought the two countries to the verge of war.

The Sancer

I WOULD like to know something of the far-back ancestry of the two boys who killed young Franks in Chicago.

No one could help noticing that this crime was tinged with suggestions of the Orient. The curious detached attitude of the two college boys accused of murder suggests the "Arabian Nights."
 They were like two old Rajahs ordering a slave cut to pieces in order to be entertained by his wrig-gles.

It was a crime entirely foreign to western civilization. Rather it is suggestive of some older—some enervated civilization to which life is cheap and without much significance. It is also oriental in this;
 that the murderers were more fascinated by the ingenious and fabricated elaboration of detail and method than in the mere fact of stopping the flow of a human life.

You can find more crimes like it in the annals of Genghis Khan and in the records of some of the Persian kings than in the police record of modern times.

Doubtless this killing did not actually have its roots in the Orient or in anything or any ancestor who was oriental. But it grew out of the same moral soil that has produced oriental degeneracy. That is to say, it is the effect of too much hothouse breeding; of an overdose of a rather fetid culture.

Men are by nature related to the dog type. Too many luxuries feed, with lives that are too soft and education that goes too much to subtleties turns them toward the cat type with cat cruelty.

Clara Phillips, the hammer murderess, was a wolf dog, tearing and destroying with insatiable fury.
 These Chicago murderers were soft, lean, powerful cats, torturing with a cat's cold, impersonal, scientific interest—watching with uplifted ears and spinning eyes, waiting until the dying mouse will try to move again.

That's the stuff more likely to be found under the turban than under the derby.

Bat Nelson's Story
 WITHOUT in the least denying that the much-advertised
 "Death Ray" will slaughter a couple of billion soldiers at every whiff, I am reminded of a story Bat Nelson told me.

Bat was at that time lightweight champion of the world.
 He said that when he was a little green apprentice of about 17 years he went to the circus. The star attraction was a boxer who circus offered a reward to anyone who could stand against his mighty fists for a single round. Being an aggressive little bulldog, Bat found himself in the circus ring taking the dare.

They gave him a pair of boxing gloves which he tremulously put on as the fighter sat glaring at him.
 Just as they shoved him into the ring the circus ring master blazed in his ear: "Beware, boy; the sting of death is in every blow."

Bat says the fighter made a terrible rush for him. Bat was so scared that he just shut his eyes and stuck out one fist. The next he knew there was a collision between his fist and something solid.
 Then nothing seemed to be in front of him.

He opened his eyes and saw the terrible gladiator lying on the canvas kicking around like an invalid chicken.

I don't say that Dr. Matthews's mighty violet ray would be like the circus prize fighter. I don't say anything. I just tell Bat's circus story.

Criticizing Americans
 NEARLY all the Europeans coming to Hollywood have one complaint to register against us.
 We are too heavily standardized.

They say our hotels have no atmosphere; they are just factories for cramming food into the human frame and getting the largest possible number of people bedded for the night with the least wastage of time and energy.

Dr. Alice Salomon—whoever she is—has returned to Germany after a tour of the United States. She remarks upon this same characteristic; and she feels convinced she found a reason for it. She says

MANY LIFE RISK CHIEFS TO COME

Underwriter Convention to be Important Event

Local Committee Plans for 3000 Attendance

Delegates Due from Every State and Canada

Indicating the event will be one of the more important conventions to be held in Los Angeles this season, John Newton Russell, Jr., general chairman of the thirty-fifth annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters, yesterday announced that his committee are preparing to entertain 3000 delegates and visitors when the gathering opens here on July 22.

These delegates will be assembled from every State, it was said, and some will arrive from Canada and other countries to assume an international aspect.

Elaborate plans for bringing the attractions of Los Angeles to the attention of the visitors now are in the hands of Mr. Russell and Will G. Farrell, publicity chairman. To attract the delegates to the city and to the hotel where the convention will be held, a large part of each day and evening is being spent in sightseeing trips about the city and the hotel.

GROWTH RAPID
All local matters pertaining to the convention are being handled by the Life Underwriters' Association of Los Angeles, of which George W. Ayars is president. In discussing the forthcoming meeting of insurance men, Mr. Farrell pointed out yesterday that in 1923, when the same convention was held in Los Angeles, the attendance was but 800. The 3000 expected to attend this year's convention, he said, will be augmented by the local membership, which probably would swell the number of insurance men assembled here at that time to 4000.

Convention meetings will be held at the Biltmore, it was announced, where several assembly-rooms and some smaller office suites have been engaged. The sessions are to continue for four days.

EXPERTS TO PROGRAM
Numerous new ideas originated by leading thinkers of the insurance business will be sprung at the convention, it was said. It also was intimated that new forms of policies may be adopted for general dispensation at the time.

When the convention swings into session, according to Mr. Farrell, the leading lights of the insurance world will be assembled in "Los Angeles" at the Biltmore. The 25th Int. at 8 p.m., William Tyroler directing.

The music federation has announced two band concerts for today, Dr. E. M. Miner's Special Los Angeles band at Outlook Park at 2:30 p.m., and R. Le Monte Parker and his Great American band at Lincoln Park at 2 p.m.

RADIO SET FINE GIFT FOR BRIDE

Even New Husband May be Pleased; Pleasure Without End Thus Provided

Science has added one of the most appropriate musical gifts to the home—the radio.

The radio set, a gift for either the bride or the bridegroom, provides them with means for musical entertainment of a wide range, supplies the news of the day, market reports, lectures, music for dancing and other forms of entertainment. As a gift it is ideal and rapidly increasing in popularity.

Radio shops are offering them in highly polished cabinet and console sets with a concealed horn and loud speaker. The horn is concealed in a lower compartment and the battery is hidden in another compartment. Thus disguised the radio console forms a splendid article of furniture.

One Los Angeles shop specializes in the new radio-phonograph set which is a combination of both the radio and the phonograph. This model comes in a cabinet form with the radio concealed on one side and the phonograph on the other. In lower compartment on one side is the loud speaker and on the other side is a compartment for the phonograph records.

A popular radio gift for the bride is the cabinet radio with a built-in speaker.

After the honeymoon is over and the bride couple installed in their own home it will not be obligatory to go out in quest of amusement if they have been the recipient of a radio set. With it they are able to work up almost any sort of music desired from radio stations throughout the country.

With the loud speaker, which eliminates the need of a horn, the music is heard at hand for dancing or the entertainment of guests. Instead of seeking the opera they can bring the opera to their home.

Ban Is Lifted on Almost All Trout Streams

With practically all restrictions on travel lifted, since the abatement of the foot-and-mouth disease, the vacationist who had planned for his trout fishing trip when the season opened the first of May, can now journey to many places where reports tell of splendid trout fishing.

An angler's journey to the Sierras, the Ventura, or to Lake Arrowhead, Big Bear Lake, the Cottonwood Lakes in the High Sierras, the San Gabriel River, or to the many places further north.

N. Aber, local fishing expert, tells us that there has been a great improvement in the trout since the foot-and-mouth restrictions have been lifted. This year, Aber further declared, he has noticed that many of the anglers are learning the art of fly fishing. Fly fishing to average rod and reel anglers is a rule, he stated, and for the fact that the high-sounding names the flies go under.

However, the anglers are getting educated and have found that the five flies practical for fishing in Southern California trout streams are the gray hackle, gray hackle, professor, royal coachman and black gnat in sizes ten and twelve.

Another mouthful of valuable information Aber is passing along to the vacationist is to use dry flies. These are used on the surface in the warmer months of the season and affords the angler great sport. The wet fly, a fly which floats along submerged, is used. The angler will find he will get a lot of fish at this time. It is a time of year when with a wet one, as now, the trout are rising and the looking for them is easy. It is like it had wings and life and at the same time palatable.

The cash register was recovered. The suspects gave the names of Jesus Paderon, Burt Reno, Estrada Ramon and Francisco Herrera.

LIGHTSHIP MEN LOVE HOMES

Despite the Isolation and the Roughness of Anchorage at Sea They Become Restless When Kept Ashore

When the Fire Island Lightship was damaged by collision with an erratic scow recently, her skipper turned the craft to the one place where repairs could be had in such an emergency—the United States Lightship Service Station at St. George, Staten Island.

It is no new thing for lightships to come in for repairs. One would think that these permanently anchored and most conspicuous objects on the sea would be free from the dangers of collision, but as a matter of fact they are in a more dangerous position than a ship that is free, as absolute dependence must be placed on the skill of the "other fellow."

Not so long ago the Ambrose Lightship received what almost proved to be its death blow; it was a collision with a small tugboat, which was in the service, because a lightship is equipped with all sorts of signaling and warning devices with which every man aboard must be familiar. Besides powerful lights, fog horns, and fog signals, and submarine bells.

The men get a chance at opening in the land service, such as taking care of lightships. But some of them stick to the lightships through preference. One has to be a seaman to sea small, and sit around the docks until the ship puts out to sea again.

Chamber Favors Reclamation of Cabrillo Beach
Project to Aid Sailors of Fleet and Nations

Playground Board to Supply Recreational Needs

Improvement of the plan to redevelop a 26-acre site known as Cabrillo Beach, lying just outside the waterfront and contiguous to the city, for the purpose of converting it into an athletic field for the use of the American navy and other nations, was given the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce late yesterday.

In presenting the details of the plan, before the directors, A. J. Brown, Jr., chairman of the Chamber's military and naval affairs committee, stated that the cost of the undertaking will be well within the limit of $100,000 available out of the bond issue for playground purposes.

The plan calls for the building of a rink jutting out from the present breakwater for a distance of 1500 feet, curving around the shore line in a manner that will cut off the direct wave action from the beach. The section between the jetty and the shore, which now is under water, will then be filled by dredging operations, the entire fill to require approximately 600,000 yards of material, according to engineers.

Engineers of the harbor commission have given a rough estimate of the cost of the entire project at $100,000.

With the completion of the jetty and fill, the playground department already has stated its intention to erect a clubhouse, bleachers, tennis courts, baseball diamond, football field, swimming and boating harbor and other recreational facilities.

C. J. Oakes of the harbor board and one of the sponsors of the plan, began active work for the filling of the playground when it was pointed out that the sailors of the Pacific Fleet as well as those of other countries which frequently dock at Los Angeles Harbor, have no opportunity for outdoor sports such as is afforded them in other coastal cities.

CO. DOUGIE IS GRANDPA

Mr. Leithardt, vice-president and director of the Federal Reserve Corporation of this city, is the father of the child.

YOUNG BOY DROWNS IN PARK POOL

Gallatin School Picnic at Lincoln Playground Ends in Tragedy

J. B. Willeford, 9-year-old pupil at the Gallatin Grammar School, Downey, was drowned yesterday in a plunge at Lincoln Park. The boy, with sixty other pupils of the same school, had gone to the park for a picnic. The boy's schoolmates noticed his disappearance shortly after he had entered the pool. Search was started immediately, and E. H. Trulle, a former life guard living at 351 West Eightieth street, brought the body to the surface.

Physicians at Receiving Hospital pronounced the boy dead after he was brought in.

TWO HELD IN ALIEN LAW CONSPIRACY

Efforts of Gus Deligaris, a merchant of Stockton, to get his brother, Nick Deligaris, into the United States from Mexico, resulted yesterday in the filing before United States Commissioner Long of a complaint charging the brothers with conspiring to violate the immigration law. It is asserted Gus Deligaris smuggled his brother across the Mexican line from Tia Juana in an automobile. Both were arrested at Santa Ana and are being held in the Los Angeles County Jail under $3000 bond each.

TEACH OFFICERS TO FIRE, IS PLEACrack Shot Police Will Cut
Crime in SouthlandDead Crook Always Better Than Dead PatrolmanThere Will be No Menace to Innocent Bystander

BY CYRUS C. JOHNSON

If your mother-in-law was in need of an operation for appendicitis would you send for the local blacksmith to perform the operation? No, we think not; even though she is your mother-in-law, it would not justify you in being responsible for the woman's death. And, besides, it is your fault that she is your mother-in-law and not her.

If you wanted to send your mother-in-law to the hospital through downtown traffic would you pick someone to drive it who had never had a single lesson in driving?

Again, we do not hesitate to assert you would not. You would call in the best surgeon in town for the mother-in-law and get a chauffeur of experience and references for the valuable bus.

The above situations are matters involving the safety of human life and limb, to say nothing of other valuable machinery. Conditions governing the safety of human life always should be given the first consideration in human affairs.

A policeman's duty is the most important work which is performed by anyone in the present system of society. Business may promote industries and millions of money may be amassed; art may flourish and educational institutions may be raised to the glory of the nation and the edification of posterity, but unless the police systems of the country are efficient, all these things, even the stability and the sanctity of the home, and founded on shifting sands.

Fine movements now are being inaugurated in the police department educating the police-officer regarding his work. All these things are good and constructive. In every way for if policemen are to do this most important of all work, and do it well they stand in need of all the information and equipment possible. And if they had all the winning diplomacy and the Belgravia courtesy of Lord Chesterfield, and the wit and the psychological intuition of Dr. Von Kleinsmid, they would still be subject to the criticism of the argus-eyed public and the highly endowed press.

"SCORE OF SHOTS FIRED"

When we read that policemen have a gun battle with crooks usually the account says: "A score or more of shots were fired." Sometimes the account is true and some policeman has emptied his gun at bandits who were shooting at him. Sometimes, to be truthful, only one shot was fired and the imaginative police reporter did the rest to make a thrilling story.

It is a fact that we rather would not be required by the dictates of conscience to relate, yet we must confess that police officers, as a class cannot shoot a pistol. And please be informed, if you are not already enlightened, neither can anybody else who has not had some systematic instruction and a lot of practice. There are a lot of men who actually labor under the delusion that they are crack shots with the old six-gun, but when they are taken out on the largest range and given a chance, confronted with the regulation four-inch bull's-eye which looks so easy to hit and would be duck egg, as the saying is, with the rifle, they blow up—usually invariably fail to hit much more than the atmosphere or the surrounding hillsides. Crooks, as a rule, who are real criminals, take a great deal of pains to be good shots. Policemen make less money than their natural enemy, the crook, and cartridges cost nearly 5 cents apiece and there is no place short of the desert, or the Maine Mountains in which to practice.

A few months ago members of the Hollywood division of the Los Angeles Police Department began to practice with their pistols out in the foothills with what ammunition they could buy with their limited means. A few days ago these men beat the crack team of the California National Guard, who had challenged them to a match and scores made were interestingly close to world-record stuff. The policemen had only a few shots of practice, as compared with the plentiful supply always available from Uncle Sam, who furnishes the guardmen with ammunition.

AMMUNITION IS SCARCE

The policemen have accepted a challenge for a return match and to date have not had ammunition to furnish the team with fifty practice shots apiece.

Everybody knows the old story about the country boatman, who was rowing the learned party across the river. One of his passengers, a naturalist, asked him if he had ever studied flora and fauna.

"No," said the boatman. "I think you have lost the best thing in life," said the professor. Later a passenger, who was a mathematician, asked the boatman if he had ever studied mathematics.

"No," replied the boatman. "I think you have lost the better things in life," said the student of arithmetic.

At last, the preacher asked the boatman if he had ever studied theology.

"No," said the boatman. "I think you are in danger of losing your soul," said the preacher. Just then the boat struck a snag and began to leak badly.

"Have any of your folks ever studied the art of swimming?" shouted the riverman.

"No!" chorused the frightened scholars.

"Then I think you have missed the most important thing in life, and you are in danger of losing your lives," said the boatman. "For this boat is going to sink."

That story illustrates the point I am trying to make. When a boat suddenly sinks there is no time for the passengers to learn to swim. They must know how, or they will be drowned. And, when a policeman is fired upon by a bandit there is no time for him to learn how to shoot fast and straight or he probably will die.

SIX POLICEMEN KILLED

In a little more than a year of local history six policemen have been shot and killed by crooks—eight crooks have been killed in the same length of time by policemen. The figures might have been considerably changed in favor of the law, if policemen were crack shots. There should have been eight dead crooks and no dead policemen.

Some of us remember one sunlit afternoon, not long ago, when we stood beside the open graves of two brother officers. We knew the men and loved them. We heard the weeping of the stricken families and shared in their grief. We believe that, had these boys been able to shoot a little quicker, and straighter, they still would have been with us and with their families.

Unfortunately, policemen are called upon to shoot men who are a menace to human life and to organized society. And when they are required to shoot, it becomes a matter of life and death for the officers. They usually shoot only when it is a matter of life and death. There is no place to practice shooting; there is no ammunition available with which to practice. Let them have a place to practice, ammunition with which to practice and a good instructor to instruct them. They may learn to shoot good and some of them will learn to shoot good if they have the chance.

HOW HE DID IT

"I hear you were judge at a baby show, yet if I have heard you say once I have heard you say fifty times that all babies look alike to you."

"Then how could you tell which was the prettiest baby?"

"I judged by the mothers."—(Excerpted from "The Mothers.")

Detroit Editor Assumes Control of Review; Will Change Office Site

Joseph J. Cummins, editor and publisher, has assumed ownership and management of the California Jewish Review, it was announced yesterday. He formerly was editor and publisher of the Detroit Jewish Chronicle, one of the foremost Anglo-Jewish publications in the country.

Mr. Cummins has announced he will endeavor to make the Review a nondiscriminating organ for all the Jews of Los Angeles and the Southwest.

The present organization of the paper will be retained virtually intact but a change will be made in the offices. After tomorrow the offices will be at 114-115 I. W. Hellman Building, Mr. Cummins will act as editor of the paper and Dr. George J. Saylin, former editor of the Review will continue in the capacity of contributing editor.

Mr. Cummins built up the Detroit Chronicle from a paper with modest local influence to a large organization with its own building, a modern printing plant and a staff of nineteen, with two special writers.

WE EAT MORE SUGAR THAN GRANDPA DID

Eight pounds of sugar a year used to be all that the average American consumed. But that was 100 years ago, in the time of John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson. Now the average American consumes 104 pounds of sugar in a year.

This is the way consumption changes over a period of years: and as consumption changes, production must follow suit, says J. I. Falconer, head of the rural economics department at the Ohio State University.

From that per capita consumption of eight pounds, sugar consumption increased to thirty pounds in 1850, to eighty pounds in 1915, and to 104 pounds in 1923. Although these figures are based on the United States, they hold true for most of the world.

Prof. Falconer continues: "The appearance and use of sugar affords a good example of the service of science to many of the changes that we may expect in our food supply. In the time of Queen Elizabeth, a pound of sugar cost as much as a quarter of a year's wages. Now a pound of sugar can be bought for less than the price of a pound of coal.

This increased consumption has been due partly to improvements in methods of production, partly to an increasing variety of uses for sugar, and partly to the greater earnings of the modern working man in bringing greater opportunity to indulge in luxuries."

TO BAND BIRDS OF ARCTICS

Two private individuals are financing as well as participating in an expedition to the Arctic regions for the purpose of making observations of the habits of some wild birds. The party is in charge of Alatus J. Murie, who has already given a great deal of time to the study of the caribou of the Arctic regions for the Biological Survey.

It is proposed to visit the great breeding ground for migratory birds located a few miles south of the mouth of the Yukon River, which is thought to be one of the most favorable places in the world for the observation of wild birds. There are a great number and variety of ducks and geese to be seen here and many of these will be trapped and banded and when these birds are taken in other places and reports made it will furnish valuable material in determining the routes and time of their migration, their wintering grounds and other valuable information. This trip involves a ride on the government railroad to Menana and after that there is an 80-mile dog-sled trip to the Yukon.

At the present time the United States produces about one-third of the total sugar consumed, the other two-thirds is imported mainly from Cuba. Of our total domestic production, about one-third is used as such and two-thirds is refined into sugar.

CABIN SITES ARE POPULAR

Southern California Ideal Place for Them

Locations Are to be Had in Near Vicinity

Thousands Prefer Them to a Big Hotel

Cabin-site time has come for hundreds of Southern Californians. The call of the open road is drawing eager motorists by the thousands to every form of outdoor recreation afforded by the South-west, and by no means least of these diversions is life in the mountains—sheltered by a cabin. Mountain-canyon locations offer untold advantages to the interested cabin site purchaser. In their wooded heights where the atmosphere is pure laden, cool and quiet; where the mornings are as sacred to Nature itself; where the mid-day sun peeps through the trees, caressing the undergrowth until it thrives with its warmth and offers carpets of velvety softness; where the sunsets are miracles of purple and gold; emerald waters and the liquid music of laughing waves and running rills, that's just a portion of what Southern California's mountain resorts "throw in" with a cabin site.

A cabin site means more than atmosphere. It means healthful activity. Fishing, boating, hiking, horse-back riding and in the evenings dances at the community dance halls, all are available to the lover of and the liver in California's great mountain outdoors. Cabin locations can be obtained within a comparatively short radius of the business center of Los Angeles. In fact, an able motorist need not leave the city in the late afternoon and spend the evening in the invigorating air of the mountains, far from the daily grind of industry and the incessant hum of trade and craft.

The fortunate individual who takes himself or herself to the rustic mountain life at night emerges brisk and vigorous for the next day's work. An early breakfast, a purring motor, a dash over the Southland's marvelous highways, and in a trice the gates of the metropolis yawn ahead, sleepily greeting the oncoming with just the slightest trace of astonishment at so shining and happy a visage. Though the cabin on your site

ROUTING LANDS NEAR AT HAND

mel. If you ever ate an abalone steak at the little cafe at the wharf's end at Monterey, and watched the fishing fleet come in, why that was something to remember, too. Pismo clams, too, are acquainted well with walking, and there is always a royal appetite provided with a seashore vacation.

Inland, however, among the thousand peaks and ranges of the mountains of California, lies another and a different vacation land. Much of it is accessible only in summer, for the winter storms lock the Sierras in a frozen solution that none penetrates. The Tioga Road, the motor trail that crosses the Sierras over a divide almost two miles in the air, is open scarcely more than sixty days out of the year and summer has a brief reign indeed among the high peaks of the High Sierras.

But in counting the treasures of California's mountain vacation land one might as well be methodical about it and begin with the Cuyamaca at the southern end of the State. Too many Southern Californians of long residence have overlooked the attractions of the mountains of San Diego county. True, they are not Sierras in altitude nor rugged grandeur, but they possess a charm distinctly their own. Their approximately mile-high altitude and their proximity to the sea give them coolness, and good mountain roads of easy accessibility. Such excellent resorts as Pine Hills Lodge, Poway Lodge at Meigs Grande, Hualapai Grove, Oak-Santa Lodge, the Willows, National Forest Country Club resort, formerly Panway Mountain resort, Alpine Hotel, San Jacinto Inn, Vale View Ranch Inn, Laguna resort, Forest Camp, Buckman Springs Hotel, Pine Valley Inn, Wildwood Glen, Los Territos, Viejas Vista, the Oaks, Grossmont Inn, Kenilworth Inn, Aurelia resort, Camp Mountain Inn, Carrizo Gorge Lodge, Cumby Hill Springs, Julian Hotel, Warren's Hotel and Mistletoe Lodge offer a variety of accommodations in the Incopah range, formerly known as the San Diego range. The camper may find in the Lagunas a timbered country of oak and pine and grassy meadows that are a real delight.

Do not overlook either Warner's Hot Springs or Paine's Mountain resort in your consideration of San Diego county. Palomar, "the dovecot, dwelling place of the wild pigeons, a flat-topped mountain almost 6000 feet in the air, is less frequented in summer than most of the southern mountains, but not the less attractive for that reason. Man-high ferns, great black oak, fir and cedar, give Palomar perhaps the most varied growth of any of the mountains of Southern California.

THE MOUNTAINS
Next to the northward and still higher rises San Jacinto. High on its south slope are idyllic mountain resorts. Taquitz Lodge and Strawberry Valley. From the sheer summit of San Jacinto is to be gained one of the most remarkable views in California. The north face of San Jacinto is an almost perpendicular wall of granite over 5000 feet high. To stand on the summit and look out over the Colorado Desert, over the Chocolate range, the Salton Sea, the Mojave Pass and the wastes of the distant Mojave is one of the most dramatic sights in California.

Gilman's Relief Hot Springs and Soboba Hot Springs are two well-known hot springs near the town of San Jacinto. San Jacinto looks level-eyed, across the pass to the Gorgonio and the peaks of the San Bernardino Mountains. Within the San Bernardino lies the well-known resort of Port Hueneme. Oak Glen Lodge, Seven Oaks, Big Bear and Arrowhead Lake.
Probably a greater number of vacationists seek the resorts of the San Bernardino than any other mountain country in Southern California. Nor is it to be wondered at, for the San Bernardino contains the highest peak, the coldest streams and the biggest bodies of water to be found in our southern mountains. There is a charm, too, in the air of the Big Bear country that is hard to describe. It is a blend, somehow, of mountain air and the dry, bright air of the desert to the north and to the east, with the smell of the pines and the wild roses that grow in the canyons in the hills above the lake. Sixty resorts circle Big Bear Lake, and good camping ground is also available. Accommodations of every kind and description are to be had at Big Bear Lake, ranging from housekeeping cabins to excellent American-plan hotels, as well as many camping spots of rare charm. Arrowhead Lake, formerly known as Little Bear, is one of the newly developed mountain resorts and is unusually scenic and picturesque. Arlington Lodge at Arrowhead Lake, the Raven Inn, Camp Fleming, Cedar Glen resort and several country clubs welcome the mountain lover. Pine Crest mountain resort, accommodating 750 people, Skyland and Camp Angelus look to the south over the San Bernardino Valley from high on the slopes.

THE SIERRA MADRES
West, across the Cajon Pass, begin the Sierra Madres, presided over by San Antonio. Among them are many beautiful places for the vacationist. Glen Ranch, in Little Creek, Camp Baldy, Ice House Canyon resort, the four San Gabriel Canyon resorts—Camp Wilson, Coldbrook Camp, Camp Bonita and Follows Camp—and Mt. Wilson are familiar and beautiful places.
Wonderful trail trips are offered to hikers who visit the camps and resorts in the mountains back of Pasadena and Sierra Madre. A hike lasting a number of days can be taken up the Arroyo Seco to Teddy's Outpost, Camp Oak Wilder, the Switzer-Land Resort, then over to Opita's Camp; from Opita's Camp to Mt. Lowe, from Mt. Lowe to Mt. Wilson and Orchard Camp, and Camp Idle Hour, then to Hoegge's Camp, Sturtevant's Camp, Roberts' Camp and Fern Lodge, and from Fern Lodge back into the West Fork of the San Gabriel, stopping at Camp West Fork.

One of the most gorgeous trail trips in Southern California can then be enjoyed by traveling the eighteen miles of canyon country down the West Fork of the San Gabriel from Camp West Fork to Camp Rincon.

Still farther to the west, in the Coast Range north of Ventura, are the famous camps of Wheeler's Hot Mineral Springs, Matilla Hot Springs and Lyon Springs.
There is wild and rugged country in the ranges where the Sepe, Piru Creek and Santa Ynez have their birth, and there is good fishing and hunting to be found there this season. Stanley Park, near Carpinteria, is a favorite vacationists' rendezvous.
In the Santa Monica Mountains are Brent's Mountain Camps and Seminole Hot Springs, two delightful resorts for a week-end or longer.

FARTHER NORTH
But incomparably greater than any other vacation country the West can offer is the Sierra Nevada, the gigantic range of peaks that wall the San Joaquin Valley to the east. Due to the light rains of the winter, the majority of the mountain motor roads of California, which are closed during the winter on account of heavy snows, were opened at an earlier date. Motor roads lead into Sequoia National Park, Gen. Grant National Park, Huntington Lake, Kings Canyon, Inyo and Kanawyers. There is a second Yosemite, of vast cliffs and domes, of wonderful streams and waterfalls.
Also in that vicinity, about sixteen miles by pack animals from the middle of the valley, Kern River Canyon, are the Pine Flat resort and the California Hot Springs—twenty-two miles from Kernville and sixty-two from Caliente, on the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railways.

Next to the northward and still higher rises San Jacinto. High on its south slope are idyllic mountain resorts. Taquitz Lodge and Strawberry Valley. From the sheer summit of San Jacinto is to be gained one of the most remarkable views in California. The north face of San Jacinto is an almost perpendicular wall of granite over 5000 feet high. To stand on the summit and look out over the Colorado Desert, over the Chocolate range, the Salton Sea, the Mojave Pass and the wastes of the distant Mojave is one of the most dramatic sights in California.

Gilman's Relief Hot Springs and Soboba Hot Springs are two well-known hot springs near the town of San Jacinto. San Jacinto looks level-eyed, across the pass to the Gorgonio and the peaks of the San Bernardino Mountains. Within the San Bernardino lies the well-known resort of Port Hueneme. Oak Glen Lodge, Seven Oaks, Big Bear and Arrowhead Lake.
Probably a greater number of vacationists seek the resorts of the San Bernardino than any other mountain country in Southern California. Nor is it to be wondered at, for the San Bernardino contains the highest peak, the coldest streams and the biggest bodies of water to be found in our southern mountains. There is a charm, too, in the air of the Big Bear country that is hard to describe. It is a blend, somehow, of mountain air and the dry, bright air of the desert to the north and to the east, with the smell of the pines and the wild roses that grow in the canyons in the hills above the lake. Sixty resorts circle Big Bear Lake, and good camping ground is also available. Accommodations of every kind and description are to be had at Big Bear Lake, ranging from housekeeping cabins to excellent American-plan hotels, as well as many camping spots of rare charm. Arrowhead Lake, formerly known as Little Bear, is one of the newly developed mountain resorts and is unusually scenic and picturesque. Arlington Lodge at Arrowhead Lake, the Raven Inn, Camp Fleming, Cedar Glen resort and several country clubs welcome the mountain lover. Pine Crest mountain resort, accommodating 750 people, Skyland and Camp Angelus look to the south over the San Bernardino Valley from high on the slopes.

THE SIERRA MADRES
West, across the Cajon Pass, begin the Sierra Madres, presided over by San Antonio. Among them are many beautiful places for the vacationist. Glen Ranch, in Little Creek, Camp Baldy, Ice House Canyon resort, the four San Gabriel Canyon resorts—Camp Wilson, Coldbrook Camp, Camp Bonita and Follows Camp—and Mt. Wilson are familiar and beautiful places.
Wonderful trail trips are offered to hikers who visit the camps and resorts in the mountains back of Pasadena and Sierra Madre. A hike lasting a number of days can be taken up the Arroyo Seco to Teddy's Outpost, Camp Oak Wilder, the Switzer-Land Resort, then over to Opita's Camp; from Opita's Camp to Mt. Lowe, from Mt. Lowe to Mt. Wilson and Orchard Camp, and Camp Idle Hour, then to Hoegge's Camp, Sturtevant's Camp, Roberts' Camp and Fern Lodge, and from Fern Lodge back into the West Fork of the San Gabriel, stopping at Camp West Fork.

"CALIFORNIA'S MOST INTERESTING STORE"

B.H. DYAS CO.
7TH AT OLIVE

Outfitters of Vacationists!

FOR THOSE WHO GO TO THE BEACH

To those who really swim, or to those who only "make-believe," the Dyas' sections of Men's and Women's Swimming Trunks, are equally attractive. For the most reasonable prices compatible with splendid quality are perfect fitting, elastic swimming suits from the most famous makers, stunning novelty suits, beach robes, caps, shoes, scarfs—all with the Dyas' guarantee of superior worth.

FOR THOSE WHO DESIRE TO PLAY
"Names to conjure with" are those of the makers of Dyas' rackets, tennis balls, nets, golf clubs, bags and balls—names that declare instantly to the sportsman the prestige of the manufacturer plus the prestige of the Dyas Shop. Nowhere are stocks more expertly chosen than at the Dyas' Shop. Quality, durability and modest prices are always prominent here.

FOR THE MOUNTAIN VACATIONIST
Ah, here is service indeed! Have you ever availed yourself of the complimentary service in the Dyas Log Cabin Information Bureau?—Have you by any chance passed by that fisherman's haven where "Pete" Peterson reigns, and dispenses tackle and sociability?

FOR THE HUNTER AND HORSEMAN
"Absolutely correct"—that is the password which sportsmen pass amongst themselves and which brings new friends daily to the Dyas Shop. It is this desire to have only the "absolutely correct" which prompted the Dyas Shop to bring a really splendid and exclusive showing of English saddlery to Los Angeles. It is this same ambition which accounts for only the most famous makes of guns appearing in the racks of one of the most interesting sections of the Dyas Shop. Your favorite make is here.

FOR THE TOURIST BY LAND OR SEA
A regulation yachting costume?—why certainly, and the Dyas Shop has it for both Monsieur and Madame. And for the land tourist, why shouldn't one be both becomingly and comfortably outfitted? It can be done—in the Dyas Shop. Here you have the benefit of an expert and friendly service. For the exacting, costumes are carefully thought out and fitted to order, tents and camping paraphernalia assembled into an ideal whole, and this is a service which costs you nothing above the usual and ordinary. Dyas is headquarters, too, for the famous Stoll Camp Equipment.

Famous Composers Give of Art to Hollywood Bowl

creasing recognition, opened the "Children's Hour" with another page from our glorious American history.

William Mitnick, 11 years of age, violinist, accompanied by Carl Fischer, exhibited a real talent for the violin last night. William is a newsboy and pays for his violin lessons with the money he earns. He has won several prizes in the various subscription contests conducted by the newspapers. His radio family wish him every success.

KELENE FINE READS
Our own Helen Price, the screen juvenile discovery of KHJ, read three poems, "The Trader," "Stars" and "Member" and also told the original story of the California wood dove with her dear diction and sweet gravity of voice.

Mrs. George L. Charette, soprano, accompanied by Grace Eaton Dow, sang four familiar but ever-charming art songs, with much skill.

The afternoon program proved a complete surprise, but a gratifying one to Radioland and our studio. The subject of the Hollywood Bowl and its summer concert is very near to our hearts. This year $10,000 must be subscribed in tickets and Mrs. J. J. Carter, one of the women our community rejoices in, came to KHJ with Charles Wakefield Cadman and other composers who have written in honor of the Bowl and broadcast their hopes and dreams of a huge success for this summer.

As The Times radio stands for help and encouragement to all big community projects we hope that everyone who listens to our broadcast of the Hollywood Bowl will feel an answering response. The program was as follows:

Mrs. J. J. Carter, mother of the Bowl, announced the sale of the Bowl Books over the radio. Natalie Spencer Messenger, church soloist, sang "Hollywood" with the composer, Warner Van Valkenburg, at the piano. Ingrid Aronson, dramatic soprano, sang "Golden California." Ruth May Shaffner, soprano, native daughter of Los Angeles, sang "Widgwood Maxwell's Spread Hollywood's Fame with Music" with the prominent actor and composer at the piano. Imogene Benton sang the "Bowl Re-frain" by Squire Coop of the Los Angeles Association. Squire Coop is director of music of the University of California at Los Angeles. Elinor Mario, mezzo, sang "Hollywood Bowl." Charles Wakefield Cadman played "The Hollywood Suite and Sunrise."

Through the courtesy of Barker Brothers, after the bowl program, Melba French Barr, whose crystal voice never fails to thrill her radio family, accompanied by Ivy May Travis, sang two groups of songs with her never-failing insight into the composer's message. She left Radioland in an uplifted and happy frame of mind.

SEVEN DAYS OF SPLENDID MUSIC

Martin Company Will Give Program Sunday
Dance Followers to Have Chance on Monday

Nature Talks Wednesday
Matinees Resumed

Having completed a week of events in music which included the return of the popular matinee programs given through the courtesy of Barker Bros., KHJ has arranged another week of glorious music and other interesting features. For Sunday an excellent program given through the courtesy of the Martin Music Company has been arranged. Claire Forbes Crane, pianist and accompanist, Calmon Subotnick, violinist, and the Lalo Trio are to appear.

Followers of the dance will have an opportunity to satisfy their tripping desires Monday noon when Carl Allen and his Rendezvous Ballroom orchestra from Crystal Beach of Santa Monica will play the music of the Martin Music Company.

As further assurance of a delightful period, "Uncle Remus" will be on hand in full regalia, which includes autoharp, harmonica, possibly the banjo and his infectious humor.

Mackie's Queen's Hawaiians will open Tuesday's activities, a day which also rings up the curtain on the matinee programs of Barker Bros. under the discriminating direction of Claire Forbes Crane. On this day KHJ also opens its portals to Queen Titania and her Sandman, a visit always fraught with pleasant surprises.

In the evening the Pickford-

Fairbanks Studio Quartet will charm with their emotional music and will also create appropriate background for Gladys Blackwell Pickering, the lass with the delicate air and equally enticing soprano voice. Mr. Allison Pickford, the radio philosopher, will discuss another installment of his views of life.

The disciples of Luther Burbank will receive further portions of botanical wisdom from Fred C. McNabb, the genial representative of nature from the Aggeler & Musser Seed Company. The Actus Life Insurance Company has arranged a program for Wednesday night, presenting among others, Leslie Brigham, bass, and Margaret Forsyth, soprano. Little Dickie Winslow will return for the children's hour.

Thursday noon again will experience the arousing touch of King Jazz, whose arm will be connected to the Oak's Tavern Orchestra appearing through the courtesy of Frank Reiter. The Hughes Girls in song and Dickie Brandon in verse and humor will brighten the children's hour. The Fitzgerald Music Company will hold sway for the fore part of the evening with one of its typical programs and later a chorus of song mixed voices under the direction of Clifford Lott will make the welkin ring.

FRIDAY PROGRAM
Friday will beam on the daily Barker Bros. matinee programs. Young Richard Hedrick will grace the children's program after the fashion of a precocious youngster and one who loves to play. Other performers of interest will be present.

The week will be brought to a close in proper style. The noon program will mark the return of Neal Wood and Charles Bradshaw, the two talented young men, who operate the slide whistle and Barker Bros. respectively. Arthur Raymond Hill, one of the old favorites to Queen Titania and her Sandman, a visit always fraught with pleasant surprises.

Portugal Is Waking Up to Radio Facts

A few months ago, radio was scarcely heard in Portugal. There was a complete lack of interest, even when the papers reported that London was broadcasting as copper wires stretched from house tops through the medium of which far distant voices and sounds of gay music were mysteriously conjured into reality.

One day a local shop imported a three-tube set from France and exhibited it in a window. The public inferred that the "thing to do" was to install a radio outfit. The machine was promptly marked "sold," and ever since a dozen or more people have been before the window.

Lisbon woke up to the possibilities of listening-in. Shortly after an evening paper devoted a column to the possibilities of catching foreign programs, the headlining stating in large type: "Here in Lisbon we can dance to the sound of jazz music being played in London."

SUMMER RADIO REST MYSTERY

Business Sees No Reason for "Deaf" Spring

All-Year-Round Broadcast Program Advocated

Campaign Urged to Scare Away Air Bugaboo

BY ROBERT J. CASEY, Vess Pocket Anthologist

Why should radio be a seasonal affair—like the flu and the winter coal bill?

It seems to be the accepted psychology in the radio business to shut up shop and go fishing at the first breath of spring. But why? That, Oswald, is one of the real mysteries of radio. It ranks in interest with static, body capacity and the proposed tax on broadcasting and it outclasses them in importance. But it is undeniably a mystery. Many a manufacturer of loud speakers has been referred to by the radio business as a "radio rest" because of its silence during the summer months.

Radio was no myth. Along about spring the great mass of radio pioneers had become convinced that radio was a myth. But why go on? The story of that fearful summer is written in records of the bankruptcy courts of every county in the United States. The public had suddenly been convinced that short-circuited coils and contact-less rheostats are an expensive attic decoration. That radio ever recovered from this period of disillusionment is proof enough of its performance and of American adjustability.

A manufacturer of loud speakers referred to by the radio business as a "radio rest" because of its silence during the summer months. The public had suddenly been convinced that short-circuited coils and contact-less rheostats are an expensive attic decoration. That radio ever recovered from this period of disillusionment is proof enough of its performance and of American adjustability.

Our loud speakers were good," he said. "They were just as good then as they are now, and we rate at present among the foremost in our branch of the industry. But there were no good receiving sets. I doubt if in the entire city of Chicago, there were three radio sets as good as our demonstrator. Naturally, the amateur constructors, who bought loud speakers in the hope that they would correct all the deficiencies of a 1919 circuit, were disappointed. The output came back that year. We had sold our patents for $5000, but we couldn't get a single radio set as good as our demonstrator. It looked as if radio would never be revived."

CHANGED AND REVIVED. Radio revived because it changed. The type are with us always. But their numbers are decreasing and it has become possible for a few to buy standard parts with fair assurance that they will work. The elementary telephone circuits are fairly well understood by a majority of amateurs. And the sounds that come over the radio are quite similar to those sent out by the broadcasting station. Prospects for continuous popularity should be good. But in the background is the memory of that terrible summer.

Because of one "silent summer" it seems likely that all summers are doomed to rule. A matter of psychology, Oswald, that only the nimble of wit can explain.

Application of the reflex principle to radio sets with dry battery tubes has made possible the construction of efficient receivers all contained in cabinets a foot long or less, that will operate a loud speaker on a loop. A summer even on the front porch, or in the lawn certainly is no less enjoyable for a radio concert, and a radio set more than one has been known to take the curse of a summer resort vacation.

As for the memory of it disappearing, it is a rough-looking cousin. Inbuilt crackles in radio sets are out of style with switch and tape and Mexico City sounds just as bad in summer as it does in winter.

INEFFICIENCY BLAMED. The Erla canvas shows that distributors and set builders throughout the country see no good reason for a warm-weather depression and look upon the annual vacation from broadcasting as a tribute to the memory of the inefficient sets of two years ago. The material works of the hay-wire mechanic have vanished.

But only a patient and honest campaign of education, extending over a period the length of which no one can forecast, will destroy the psychological bugaboo that "syp" built.

In Barcelona, Spain, a movement to develop the radio telephone has started, which may mean the opening of the market for apparatus to all countries. An association of radio dealers seeks to obtain a government concession to broadcast, which may be granted as restrictions are decreasing and the Marconi Company is becoming interested. During the great war, wireless operation was prohibited in Spain, and even after peace was established, offenders were sometimes arrested. Recently, however, a proposal to establish wireless stations without government permission, or regulations was suggested, or the alternative, that government concessions be made to operators. There are today about 1000 receiving sets in Spain, showing a fair interest.

Behind Elite Doors

Are this Sculptor's Clay

ERNEST, the sculptor who moulds from sweets those exquisite baskets of floral loveliness you admire at The Elite.

From candy syrups just ready to chrystallize he takes the jeweled drops. Swiftly, clean cut as with a sculptor's chisel, his deft fingers mould the gay and delicate tints into rare orchids, pensive pansy faces, saucy capped sweet peas, orange blossoms, and fragile lilies of the valley.

At his touch, an endless profusion of flowers blossom . . . so perfect that as you watch their blooming, memory flashes back to pansy bordered walks, lilacshadowed gates, and wide stretches of golden poppy fields.

And in another part of this Studio of Sweets are other workers, whose subtle artistry evolves cooing doves and joyous bells to adorn the wedding cakes that hold so many hopes these bright June bridal days.

Diamond Quality and Diamond Prices

The jewelry business is perhaps the only branch of commerce in which the term "perfect," when applied to merchandise, is approved without any feeling of exaggeration. It is used to describe diamonds which have no perceptible defects, even under strong magnifying glasses. They are pure in color, have no casts or flaws and are cut with mathematical precision.

It is our policy to handle only that kind of diamonds, and to encourage the finest artistry in the creation of suitable mountings.

Perfect diamonds have standard values that prevail in all high grade jewelry stores. The prices you find at Brock and Company's are just what you will find in any leading jewel shop in the country.

Out of Town

Days may come and day may go but affairs of society go on forever and the smart set of the Crown City's social life have contributed their share of attractive gatherings complimenting various charming Southern dwellers.

Among the weddings of the week, that of Miss Ruth Crowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Crowell of North Marengo avenue, was particularly lovely. She became the bride of John Fairchild Myrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel W. Myrick of Los Angeles, Tuesday evening at a beautiful ceremony in the First Baptist Church at which Dr. O. P. Gifford officiated.

Attended by her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Bennett, with Misses Cassandra Woolery, Marcelline Kaiser, Elsie-Jane Myrick and Elizabeth Crowell as bridesmaids, the bride made a striking picture in her gorgeous imported wedding gown of whiteorgette crepe, heavily embroidered with crystal beads. Her tulle veil was arranged with a headdress of rose point lace and clusters of orange blossoms while the brideal bouquet was a shower of white orchids, lilies of the valley and bride roses.

Nathaniel Myrick acted as best man and the ushers were John Crutcher, Joseph Lippincott, Robert McHenry, Philip Chapman, Fred W. Cole and Paul Crowell, brother of the bride. The couple will spend the summer on a motor trip throughout California and will be at home in Pasadena after September 1.

Miss Margaret Halbe, who is to marry Phillip Richards, was complimented by Miss Alice Gilbert of 230 North Los Robles avenue, with what was forecasted as a "shower," but turned out to be a veritable "cloudburst." More than a hundred of the bride-to-be's friends gathered in her honor and the affair was indeed a delightful one.

At an early morning service in St. Andrew's Church Monday, Miss Marie Bloom, daughter of Mr. Emma L. Bloom of 424 South Euclid avenue, was married to Francis Hurley of Chicago, Mr. John M. McCarthy performing the ceremony before a large gathering of relatives and friends. The bride, who was given away by her brother, A. F. Bloom of Omaha, Neb., was attended by her sister, Miss Inez L. Bloom, as maid of honor and little Marjorie Bloom, her niece, as flower girl, while Frank J. Hurley, brother of the groom, acted as best man. A wedding breakfast followed at the Hotel Vista del Arroyo.

At a delightful bridge-tee the engagement of Miss Margaret E. Seares, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Seares of South Los Robles avenue, to Edmund Groat, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Groat of Whittier, was announced Thursday afternoon at the Delta Phi sorority house in Los Angeles, the invitations being issued by Mrs. Seares and Mrs. Bessie Bloom, patronesses of the sorority of which Miss Seares is a member. September 22 is the date chosen for the wedding.

Another engagement just announced is that of Miss Jessica Mae Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carson of 374 South Chester avenue, to Norman Cooper, September 1 being the date selected for the happy event.

Sierra Madre

Thursday evening was the last get-together of the Sierra Madre Community Sing. For three seasons they have met each week for musical instruction and good fun under the direction of Mr. Hugo Kirchhofer. There were review songs and an unusually pleasant hour and a half of song, followed by simple refreshments and social chat. One of the chief functions of the sing has been the fostering of a better neighborliness. Making people feel acquainted and at home with each other is Mr. Kirchhofer's special talent and the season's meetings and greetings have enhanced the Sierra Madre community spirit immeasurably.

A number of people went in auto parties to the Hollywood Bowl on Thursday evening to hear Gallucci. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clough and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Parker of North Baldwin avenue.

On Monday evening at the call of Mr. Jack Mitchell, a group of war veterans met at the Park Community clubhouse to form a post here in Sierra Madre of the American Legion. Papers authorizing the procedure had been received from the headquarters of the department of California.

Sierra Madre has over eighty men who participated in the World War and who returned to this city at the close of the war. Since then, more ex-service men have moved into this vicinity, so there is both a need for a post and the material for one.

Next Thursday, under the direction of Harold Allen, assisted by Miss Blumer, Mr. Jack Buchanan, and a gentleman from Pasadena, a group of well-known singers and players from Sierra Madre are to put on a burlesque which rumor has it bids fair to be the very funniest production the town will have ever witnessed. After "Trust Emily" and the last Chamber of Commerce play, local play supporters can scarcely believe such a thing to be possible. Inasmuch as the proof of the pudding is the eating thereof, the whole town is sure to turn out for a good laugh and to augment the fund of the Sierra Madre finance committee of the Sierra Madre sing. Although there is a "bowl" and, there have been seasons who have redeemed their pledges when called upon, the sing has lagged behind, and it is a maxim with the promoters to wind up the year with a flourish, all bills paid, and a top-notch time for a finale.

Yorba Linda

With county, state, and national federation meetings coming close together, club women of Yorba Linda have been very busy these past few days. To the meeting of the Orange county federation held last week in Placentia, a number of delegates were sent. There were Mrs. E. E. Knight, who is president of the county organization, Mrs. S. W. Ackers, Mrs. A. W. Miller, Mrs. J. W. Hargrave, Mrs. J. A. Small, Mrs. G. W. Kellogg, Mrs. B. M. Selover and Mrs. Della Miller. At Pasadena Saturday when the California Federation of Women's Clubs met Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Selover attended. The meetings of the general federation held in Los Angeles were also attended by groups of women from the Yorba Linda club. One member, Miss Martha Vernon is a member of the local biennial board.

Five hundred games offered amusement in the living-rooms. Attractive prizes were awarded to Mrs. Harold McGraw, Miss Laura Taeger and Mrs. George Vance. Dainty refreshments were served and as a remembrance of the pleasant afternoon each guest received a beautiful pink rose bud, attached to which was a card which announced the wedding date as the 14th inst.

At a simple though most impressive ceremony solemnized in the beautiful home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Drake, on West Commonwealth avenue, Miss Eva Drake became the bride of LeRoy Dimond last week. Fifty relatives and friends were asked to witness the wedding. To the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Lee Drake, the bridal couple entered unattended and took their places before an improvised altar where baskets of exquisite gladioli and delphiniums were combined in artistic arrangement with greenery. The bride was gowned in lovely white silk lace and carried a bouquet of great peas and baby gladioli. The vows were spoken before Rev. Graham C. Hunter, pastor of the Fullerton restraint and yet more power through that very repression. Audiences are developing also, growing in discernment and appreciation so that after methods which perhaps in the early days would not have been effective, are possible now because those who view the pictures are learning to value and understand subtler shading, more delicate artistry.

 That brought Mr. Darnton to another aspect of motion pictures—the possibilities of beauty in screen productions.
 "This is a beautiful art, and doubtless in time will become the most beautiful of all," he exclaimed with enthusiasm. "Why, the possibilities are almost limitless. There is the whole world to choose from for beauty of photoplay setting and background, and not only that, but the realm of the imagination, too, while the writer for the stage is restricted to three or four scenes for his play and those in turn must be contained within the three sides of a box. Of course, beauty alone is not enough. There must be drama, suspense, character in whose fate the spectator is interested. But with these elements there can often be surpassing loveliness as well, both in outdoor backgrounds and in studio sets, which should naturally be designed to interpret the mood of the photoplay and enhance the value of dramatic action."

felt compelled to stand them a lunch I can't imagine. Well, ahem, as we were saying.

There are decided points about Montana. For instance, he has a modest-violet complexion—anyway for professional purposes. Or was it a sense of the ridiculous that impelled him to assure me he was doing this directing business for the money and did not care a whoop about art. He lied. But having higher dramatic-art aspirations, he has become so acrobatically bromidic in film that Montana just can't fancy himself saying it. Besides, of course, being with that Metro-Mayer-Goldwyn contingent does rather entail paying his way.

But as a matter of cold fact, Montana has higher art aspirations and it is his sky intention to slip a good deal of it over on us in these "box-office" pictures—with due regard for the modest violet, which, as he admits, is the best advertised flower in horticulture.

FOR GOOD MEASURE

We have yet to discover how much he has slipped over on us in "How to Educate a Wife." Assistant author, Mrs. Elinor Glyn. (Or, law the press agent didn't say a word about bringing Mrs. Glyn into this story? But I don't care, this is woman's week in Los Angeles and we are not going to leave a representative woman out—even if she isn't a speaker at the convention.)

All the same, all of Elinor that pervades that picture is the title. I am prepared to wager that the leading emotional author will agree with me—after Sunday.

Monta Bell is professionally pre-arranged as 35 years of age. That would make him an editor and theatrical producer and syndicate writer and all the rest of it in the cradle. Very immature, what? And as he has a charming witty wife and a 13-year-old daughter, I would really much rather place him in the "How to Educate a Wife" category—for "what to do with our boys" reasons. If any son of mine starts marrying and becoming a father at 13 or so, there'll be a shindy in our family.

Besides, I liked Montana—and I never did like him too young. He stands 8 feet 3 inches, which entails my looking up to him. And, the way he wears that, the baggy trousers with such a distinctive air. It takes a tall fellow in his super thirties to do that.

And Montana is so tactful. Right away he perceived that I had come direct from the women's convention. One is sort of labelled at such times. So he conceded the lines, as a rule, between where the director begins and the writer leaves off.

A good script can be ruined by a bad director; and a poor script can be made into a good picture by a clever megaphone artist. That, of course, is an antique bromide around the studios, but it is always worth repeating. To it should be added that the New York office devastates the work of both or either.

I have always personally been in favor of seeing the functions of writing for the screen and directing.

Oh, ah, and we can all go to see "How to Educate a Wife" next week and check up on him on that.

LIKES 'EM YOUNG

All the same, he did show a really passionate interest in my convention recitals, especially when I mentioned the delegate from Oklahoma City. Well, yes, Virginia, Sprinkle is but 14 years of age, bless her heart, and she is charming with girlish simplicity—but I am sure dear Montana would have been just as interested if she had been a nice middle-aged frump, now wouldn't you, Montana?

Really, don't you know, I cannot think of a better interlude in a woman's convention than lunching with Montana Bell. I can't help feeling that the Chamber of Commerce or some other hospitable organization should have arranged for at least the most important delegates and officers to lunch with a Montana Bell now and then. Los Angeles may be noted for its lovely maidens, but really now, we don't do so badly on attractive men. I don't believe they can make any such good showing in any other convention city. And it might have had such a very happy effect on the ladies' views on film—don't you think?

Especially if they heard Montana, telling how he has the nicest wife in the world... But hearken unto this modest-violet complexion imploring me "please, please don't say that I was really responsible for Chaplin's 'Woman of Paris.' Of course, I wasn't! Chaplin is a genius! It only makes me look foolish when people give me credit I don't deserve. I love Charlie and he taught me so much."

("Say, you will get Metro-Mayer Goldwyn in that story, won't you?" wailed one of our chaperones.)

And "Don't forget the California Theater—'How to Educate a Wife,' will you?" implored the other. Oh, good-by, Montana.

Costumes for 10,000 Players

Some Problem

The enormous amount of money and material used in making a big film spectacle is illustrated in the case of "Scaramouche." Rex Ingram's production for Metro of Rafael Sabatini's story of the French Revolution, which is showing for the first time at popular prices at Loew's State Theater this week. More than $50,000 feet of film was used during the "shooting" of the picture.

The biggest item was the construction of sets representing the palace of the Tuileries, an old chateau and city streets of the France of 1789. Kennels, pens, stables and cages had to be built for dogs, pigeons, ducks, cats, oxen, horses, canaries, peacocks and other birds and animals. Carriages and coaches had to be reconstructed with perfect historical accuracy. Costumes had to be made for the 10,000 persons who appeared in the mob scenes. There were uniforms for the soldiery and outfits of especial magnificence for players representing the nobility. The total number of persons involved in some capacity in the production was approximately 11,500.

"BEN HUR" AND

Bern had a notable record with such films as Victor Seastrom's "Name the Man," Ernst Lubitsch's "The Marriage Circle," and Pola Negri's "Compromised," adapted from "The Song of Songs" to his credit. These are reckoned among the more intellectual output of the studios.

It is difficult to figure at times just how much the scenario writers contribute to the worth of pictures which they write, if these happen to have worth. There is really no drawing the lines, as a rule, between where the director begins and the writer leaves off.

A good script can be ruined by a bad director; and a poor script can be made into a good picture by a clever megaphone artist. That, of course, is an antique bromide around the studios, but it is always worth repeating. To it should be added that the New York office devastates the work of both or either.

OF DAYS THAT ARE GONE

The prohibition agent's nightmare!

That was the property man's title for the largest bottle ever made, which was constructed for carnival scenes in "Men." Pola Negri's latest starring vehicle and Dimitri Buchowetzki's first American production.

There was no glass works in Hollywood equipped to handle so large an order, so the vessel, which is twenty-seven feet in height, was made of rubber and plastic cement over a light framework of steel.

Built to represent a gigantic champagne bottle, it was capped in the regulation manner with gold paper. The label, copied from that of a famous French brand of champagne, was printed on a press used for preparing billboard posters. The bottle has a diameter of eight feet with sides four inches thick.

The bottle is prominent in the atmosphere of the lavish Parisian carnival sequence wherein Pola Negri, as a notorious Parisian idol, sells herself to the highest bidder.

"Men" was written as well as directed by Dimitri Buchowetzki and Paul Bern prepared the story for the screen. Robert W. Frazer, Robert Edeson, Josef Swickard, Monti Collins, Gino Corrado, Edgar Norton and Raymond Hatton are featured in the supporting cast. The picture was recently completed in the Lasky studios at Hollywood.

ing united in a single personality. It is a surety that this would give a film more individuality.

At the same time, even scenario writers when they arrive at a directorship generally hire somebody else to do their continuities for them, for notice, indeed, that Bern has followed this traditional procedure, because the script for his film was done by Willis Goldbeck.

It's a good combination, but it seems to me that the principle is wrong when a man has really an established reputation as a scenario writer. Elinor Glyn tells me a good one on "How to Educate a Wife," which is to show here this week. It is the second film that was directed by Monta Bell, and Grant Carpenter did the adaptation, but the funny thing was that Warner Brothers only bought the title.

"It's the most ridiculous thing that I have ever heard," expostulated Mrs. Glyn. "Why 'How to Educate a Wife,' wasn't a story at all. Can you imagine her trying to make a picture out of it? I wrote it as a series of articles and they hadn't any sign of a story or plot."

Of course, Mrs. Glyn knew little or nothing of the project, because the articles were sold to Warner's through her agent, but perhaps there is reason to suspect that her fact writing is after all quite as colorful as her fiction.

I THERE was ever a man that had the soul of a bard and a minstrel, adapted to the age in which he lived, it was the late Victor Herbert. His death—less than two weeks ago as decided a loss as any that has occurred in American music in the last ten years.

Not since Edward MacDowell, indeed, has any composer passed away who has meant so much, and though Herbert was not on the high classical plane perhaps of the other, he had moments of tremendous inspiration, and a latent and exceptional understanding of the very best in music, and he was and is tremendously popular.

No more fitting tribute could be paid to him than the restoration of his grand opera, "Natoma" to the promises of the Bay Cities Musical Association to offer a real grand opera in their presentation of "Cavalleria Rusticana" on the nights of the 16th and 17th insts., is evidenced by the fact that the famous prima donna, Alice Gentile, recognized as one of the greatest Santuzas, has been engaged for this role. Singing opposite to Miss Gentile, in the leading tenor role of Turiddu, the association has secured Victor Edmunds, Welsh tenor, who will make her debut in this role.

While in Los Angeles Mr. Edmunds is coaching the role of Turiddu under the eminent voice teacher, Otto Morando, internationally known pedagogues and director. Ettore Campana will sing the baritone role of Alfio.

Complete costumes and special scenery for the production have been secured from Manager L. E. Selvidge, Signor Fulgini and Guarnieri will conduct the opera. The entire proceeds from the presentation will be given by the association to the Santa Monica auxiliary for the Children's Hospital.

PREDICTS DISCARD OF TITLE CRUTCH

Craufurd Kent

Titleless pictures are in the air. And Craufurd Kent is one actor who is welcoming them.

"Titles," he said, "are really the rival of the actor and not the prop they're supposed to be when they're discarded, acting before the screen must become more exacting, but we shall be freer. For it will devolve upon the actor to paint alone the big emotional idea. Now he has to see it taken from him and conveyed in a line."

Sometimes Craufurd Kent is called the John Barrymore of the screen. His success as the semi-villain in "Lilies of the Field" was so considerable that the eyes of directors across the seas have been turned towards him and it is not impossible that he may join the group leaving Hollywood for foreign conquest.

England already knows him very well, for he started his career as a concert singer in London, where his family has lived for ages.

SOPRANO IN REPERTORY

Florence Van Dyke, dramatic soprano, artist-pupil of Mme. Grace Whistler, with whom she has been preparing a unique and interesting program of old Italian, French and modern English songs, will give a recital Thursday evening at the Regent. Miss Van Dyke, who is studying for opera, will continue her studies along this line with Mme. Whistler, later going to Jean de Reszke in Europe. She plans to make her debut in Italy.

which a painter was busily painting, all unaware what was going to happen to him.

"Just watch him!" gurgled Jack. "He doesn't know about his trickiness!"

Just then the painter arose suddenly, stared around wildly, and sat down precipitately, as the statue began to move with him.

Everybody laughed, and the painter blushed violently, but vowed to get even.

"He will, too!" laughed Jack.

ALL GOOD FELLOWS

There is good cameraderie always on the Pickford pictures, whether Mary's or Jack's. Both consider that a "kidding" spirit around the studio or on location quickens the faculties, and makes everybody cheerful and industrious.

Norma Shearer is playing the lead in Jack's picture, and says that she is enjoying it immensely, though she isn't in many of the comedy scenes.

Jack Pickford has never been in better condition in his life, both mentally and physically, than he is now. Marilyn Miller, who is preparing for a strenuous season in "Peter Pan," is now working in New York stage, and Jack refuses to be outdone. Both spend an hour or two a day in the gymnasium at the studio.

Even as we were talking, over at Sunland, Marilyn bounded from her automobile like a rubber ball, came over, smiled brightly. Marilyn is always like a glass of champagne, she's so full of pep—and told Jack he must come for a horseback ride with her—that she had secured some horses over at the Sunland stable.

HE QUITS THE JOB

So Jack excused himself, and trotted off with Marilyn, leaving Vernon Keays, who is directing (wearing one of Jimmy Cruise's old coats, which he had borrowed, for luck), to make some scenes with Miss Shearer and Claire MacDowell, who is playing Jack's mother, and making a wonderful job of it, I hear.

Jack is to make three pictures with Gessie. The next one will be a college boy story, and will be begun out here, but finished in New York.

Young Pickford loves Los Angeles and hates New York, but he wants to be with his wife when she returns to the stage, so he is going to stay back there this winter.

But Marilyn loves the West, too, and already the pair are busy planning a house they mean to build out here next year.

PIERROT YOUTHFUL AT HEART

English Music Hall Star, Beloved of Children and Respected by Adults

He who the laughter near to tears, His artist's touch is true to truth, His master's in eternal youth.

A dramatic critic in far-off Australia, having just come from a vaudeville theater where he saw Wee Georgie Wood, who is a feature on this week's Orpheum bill, indited the above lines, which were incorporated in his review of Georgie's performance. And in that simple quatrain he came as near to expressing the real spirit of the diminutive star of the English music halls as it is possible to do.

Wee Georgie Wood is a rather baffling young man. He has been called the embodiment of Peter Pan. Although he has actually attained man's estate in the matter of years, and has the knowledge and poise of a man, he is at the same time very much of a high-spirited boy, with all a boy's capacity for the enjoyment of simple things and youthful pleasures. He has an extraordinary capacity for putting himself to his company. When he is with children he is a child, and when he is in the company of adults he is as mature as any. Children adore him because he understands them so thoroughly. He is quite capable of spending a happy hour playing boys' games with a roomful of youngsters and immediately afterwards talking with authority and considerable brilliance on art and literature with their parents.

Wee Georgie, who is a native of Sunderland, Eng., has been on the stage since his childhood. He started his professional career at the age of 7, with a troupe of traveling Pierrots. After a time his talent was noticed by a London impresario, and he was given a chance in the variety halls. It was not long before he was topping the bills, which he has done ever since. Georgie has played in every English-speaking country in the world, including South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. Just before he sailed for this country Georgie appeared on the same bill in London with Jane and Katherine Lee, the famous American kid stars. Upon his debut at the Palace Theater, New York, Georgie received a huge basket of chrysanthemums and roses from Jane and Katherine, welcoming him to this country.

COLLEGE COMPLETES GREEK PLAY PLANS

Final preparations for the performance of the Greek tragedy of Euripides, "The Bacchanae," to be presented by the senior class of Occidental College Thursday evening, are being completed. This drama promises to surpass anything of its kind ever staged in Southern California.

The elaborate costumes designed by Robert R. Sharpe, a well-known eastern artist, are completed. The apparel of the chorus, robes of Dionysus, god of wine, is bold in color design and peculiarly typical of bacchanals. The setting is ideal. The majestic steps leading to the upper quad and the white buildings close on either side make a natural setting of rare beauty and afford wonderful possibilities for dramatic and lighting effects of unusual character.

Glimmer Bros. head of the Pasadena Community Players, is director. Whatever profits may be realized will be contributed to the building of the Occidental College Greek Theater, to be constructed in a natural bowl in the hills to the rear of the college.

JAZZY PHOTOPLAYS
FEATURES OF WEEK

Pictures with jazzy themes seem to predominate among the new attractions of the week. "Wandering Husbands" with Lila Lee and James Kirkwood, which opens tomorrow at the Mission Theatre, and "Daughters of Today," with Patsy Ruth Miller and Ralph Graves, at Clune's, are both frankly of this type. "How to Educate a Wife," with Monte Blue and Marie Prevost, at the California; and "Men," featuring Pola Negri at the Metropolitan, fall under the general heading.

Holdovers and revivals of the week include "Cytherea" at the Alhambra, "Girl Shy" at the Criterion, "The Ten Commandments" at the Egyptian, "America" at the Forum, "Scaramouche" at Loew's, "King of Wild Horses" at Miller's, "Manhandled" at the Million Dollar, "The Galloping Fish" at the Rialto and "Conductor 1492" at Tally's.

"America" and Theater Please Gathering momentum with every passing day, the Forum, where D. W. Griffith's "America" is showing, is playing to capacity audiences. Los Angeles people and the thousands of tourists coming into the city are thronging to the new Roman amusement temple, for in the brief time since the doors were thrown open to the public it has become noted as one of the chief sights of the Southland. Griffith's new production, from the story by Robert W. Chambers, is being acclaimed as the master work of the director. It portrays an appealing romance of a proud beauty of Virginia and Nathan Holden, young express rider, filmed against a background of the Revolution.

There is an atmospheric production, "The Castle of Liberty," enacted by a cast of fifty persons. Julius K. Johnson, at the Klubb, gives a recital before every performance, and Charles Laird, basso, appears in a song recital. Harry H. Silverman and the Forum Symphony Artists give an excellent musical program.

Lee-Kirkwood Picture

Lila Lee and James Kirkwood come to the Mission tomorrow in "Wandering Husbands," following the closing performance today of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

The new production is declared to be a distinct novelty, portraying a comedy drama of modern family life that carries a big kick in the climax.

Mack Sennett's new comedian Ralph Graves, makes his bow as a comedy lead in "East of the Water Tower," which is said to be destined to keep Los Angeles in a state of hilarity during the coming weeks. A special presentation program has been lined up by Manager Dwight L. Hill.

"Cytherea" on View
At the Alhambra Theater Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Cytherea—Goddess of Love," is showing again. This is Joseph Hergesheimer's novel dealing with the unrest in modern society, especially with the romantic middle-aged husband who believes that his home is the least attractive of places. A beautiful story, glowing and glamorous, colorfully portrayed under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, which tells of a man who worshipped an image and who, when he confronts the living embodiment of this idol, falls in love with her, defies all conventions and journeys to far-off Cuba, there to find happiness.

Lewis S. Stone, Irene Rich, Alma

Marvel Quiver in
"White Collars," Egan

Pauline Frederick

Playhouse

Rubens, Norman Kerry and Constance Bennett are some of the feature players in the production.

Theater's Best Attraction
"Manhandled" is far eclipsing in number of paid patrons daily any attraction that has ever played at the Million-Dollar Theater.

Although Miss Swanson is the star and dominates the picture with what everyone considers a highly meritorious presentation of the role of Tessie McGuire, shop-girl, several others of the cast are entitled to a goodly share of credit for the success of the picture, notably Tom Moore, who has the role of the range mechanic lover of Tess.

Several interpolated features add to the enjoyment of the program, notably "The Ten Commandments" and high praise has been accorded the musical program under the direction of Maurice Lawrence.

Pola's Latest
Pola Negri presents a single case in millions when she depicts the story of man vs. woman in "Men" at Grauman's Metropolitan this week.

In the role of a continental girl working in a little French wine shop, she portrays man's abuse of woman and woman's retaliation against him. She shows the mockery of the terms "stronger" and "weaker" sex.

"Men" is Dimitri Buckowetzki's first American picture. It was written by the producer from a true story related to him by a French innkeeper.

The men in the story are portrayed by Robert W. Frazer, Robert Edson, Josef Swickard, Monty Collins, Gino Corrado and Edgar Norton.

"Scaramouche" Returns
"Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's production for Metro, which is adapted from Rafael Sabatini's novel, is now showing at Loew's State Theater.

The story has the French Revolution for its background and tells the romance of a youth of the people for a noblewoman. Because of its revolutionary sentiments this youth joins a band of strolling players and becomes "Scaramouche"—the bitterest antagonist his sweetheart who entertains a feeling for a nobleman brings about his doom.

The cast includes Ramon Novarro, Alice Terry, Lewis S. Stone, Edythe Allen, Lloyd Ingraham, Julia Swaine, Gordon, George Siegman and William Humphrey.

The production will be presented on a massive scale, with one of the most elaborate musical settings Arthur Kay has yet evolved. The program includes the Knickerbocker Symphonies and the Loew's Concert Orchestra on the stage playing an appropriate overture.

Another Laugh Week
Another week of laughter has been arranged at Tally's Theater with a double program consisting of the Warner Brothers' hot-weather special "Conductor 1492," with Johnny Hines and Dorla May in the leading roles, and Will Rogers in "Little Moments From Big Pictures."

"Conductor 1492" is a feeling, fast and furious comedy in which not a dull moment is allowed the spectator. Rogers in his new screen scream, has a routine of burlesque situations on such pictures as "Over the Hill," "Blood and Sand" and "Robin Hood."

Animal Picture Popular

That pictures starring animals are becoming more and more popular with the public is demonstrated by the fact that "The King of Wild Horses," the film featuring Rex, a magnificent Morgan stallion, began its third week at the Miller Theater yesterday.

"The King of Wild Horses" is unique in that it appeals to grown-ups as well as children and this doubtless is the reason for its popularity. The human players in the picture are Edna Murphy, Leon Barry and Charles Parrot.

"Jubilo Jr.," a comedy featuring Will Rogers and Hal Roach's "Gang" of kids, is also on the program.

New Glyn Story
Ellnor Glyn has the reputation of knowing the ins and outs of the hearts of men and women better than any other woman. Her latest story, "How to Educate a Wife," is the current attraction at the California Theater.

The cast includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Ralph Graves, Ethel Shannon, Gertrude Claire, George Nichols, Philo McCullough, Dorothy Wood, Zasu Pitts, Edward Hearn, Fontaine La Rue, Marjorie Bonner and others.

Some of the snappy scenes are a midnight bathing party, "Policia's" poker, "African gold" games and wild picnic.

Approaching Milestone
With its 400th performance close at hand, Cecil B. De Mille's production, "The Ten Commandments," goes into its twenty-eighth week tomorrow at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater.

The screen classic shares honors with Sid Grauman's colorful atmospheric prologue, "A Night in Pharaoh's Palace," with its cast of 100.

With the completion of the twenty-eighth week the biblical epic will be but eight performances short of the 400 mark and Sid Grauman is confident this feature film will establish a new performance mark at the Hollywood Egyptian, which, in its twenty months' existence, has shown but three photoplays.

More Than a Fish Story

"Galloping Fish," now creating laughs at Grauman's Rialto, is more than a fish story. Fabricated of humorous turns and unexpected twists in novel situations, it keeps the audiences in a continuous roar of laughter. Del Andrews directed, with such stars as Louise Fazenda, Sidney Chaplin, Fred Starling, Lucille Rickson and Chester Conklin, to say nothing of Freddie, the trained seal, who plays the title role.

Added merriment to the Rialto program is given in a Sennett comedy, "Cat Meow" with Harry Langdon as the chief mirth-provoker.

An elaborate stage presentation to the Rialto orchestra under the baton of Jan Cofer, are other features of entertainment.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR FOR LOCAL TENOR

Raymond Harmon, popular local tenor, will go to San Francisco the 10th inst., where he will be heard in concert. On the 12th inst. he will be the soloist for the Santa Cruz male chorus at Santa Cruz. Mr. Harmon has earned for himself an enviable position in the world of music. Wherever he sings he is honored with a return engagement and adds to his already large following. His voice is of the rarest timbre, over which he has perfect control.

In ending this season's work Mr. Harmon is closing the most successful season of his career and placing himself in the topmost round of the ladder of fame.

Powerful batteries were placed over at the side of the stage, connected with the microphones in the footlights and behind the furniture, all invisible to the audience. So that as far as the people out front were concerned, it was merely a regular performance. But it was far from that for the people back-stage. There were various tests of the apparatus to watch before the final connections were made. A Westinghouse representative gave an introductory talk into a special microphone explaining the necessary details and picturing the first act locale with the cast. Her last words synchronized with the rise of the curtain.

Miss Barrymore, whose entrance does not come until about ten minutes after the act has begun, could stand in the wings and watch the workings. What is more, she could take a receiving instrument provided and listen in, even as radio fans were doing clear across the country.

She learned that the broadcast carried every word not only through to California, but over the Atlantic. The author, Alfred Sutro, could listen to it in London, while down in Florida, where Arthur Hopkins, the producer, was having his rest, he could listen in, as well. And these were only a few of those most direct interested out of the hundreds of thousands.

As Miss Barrymore said, after listening in until just before the time for her cue it seemed like another first night of the play and the condition was one that almost inspired the unavoidable nervousness of a premiere.

DRAMATIC SCHOOL'S GRADUATES SIGNED

The Maria Oatman School of the Theater, affiliated with Thomas Wilkes, is being represented again at the Majestic Theater by Jean Nash, who plays the role of Muriel, one of the Manikins, in "Lombardy, Ltd.," with Leo Carrillo. Miss Nash also appeared in "The Road Together," with Marjorie Rameau during her recent engagement at the Majestic.

Another student of the school, Jean Ragemy, is making her professional debut next week with the Mission Theater stock company, San Francisco. Miss Ragemy has been engaged to play second lead, although it is her first professional experience.

YOUNG DANCER IS SUCCESS IN EAST

Lina Basquette

Lina Basquette, daughter of Ernest Belcher of this city, who has been the featured dancer in the current production of the Ziegfeld Follies, is to be one of the stars of the fall production. According to word received here the dancer is to execute several numbers of her own creation in the new revue. She will be surrounded by a ballet of forty corpees.

Though only 17 years old, Miss Basquette has already reached the point where the New York press has called her America's greatest dancer of the classics. She has been on Broadway two years, appearing in several large productions. Her name is now attached to a long-time contract with Ziegfeld.

The dancer may come here this summer for a short vacation.

BACK WITH VITAGRAPH
James Morrison is back on the Vitagraph lot after an absence of many months. He is essaying the leading juvenile role in David Smith's screen version of Rafael Sabatini's novel, "Captain Blood," Morrison has been featured in many Vitagraph specials during recent years, including "Black Beauty" and others.

DANCER SUCCESSFUL
Beth Dorf, formerly a pupil of Ernest Belcher, is the featured dancer in Eddie Cantor's "Kid Boots," now playing in New York.

PLAYS TO A MILLION HEARERS

New York Performance of "Laughing Lady" Broadcast by Radio to World

"All the thrills of an opening night," was the answer made by Ethel Barrymore when asked what her sensations had been as her performance in "The Laughing Lady," in which she is now entering the final week of her engagement at the Biltmore, was broadcast from New York last season. That night, in addition to the thousand people in the audience before her—which is the number accommodated by the Longacre Theater, where Miss Barrymore was then appearing—the radio had carried the first act out to an audience estimated by Westinghouse representatives to be more than three-quarters of a million.

It was the first time that a distinguished star had consented to have her performance reproduced, although parts of other plays had been sent before. As for Miss Barrymore, she felt it to be a distinctly novel sensation to be playing to so many hundreds of thousands all at once.

Powerful batteries were placed over at the side of the stage, connected with the microphones in the footlights and behind the furniture, all invisible to the audience. So that as far as the people out front were concerned, it was merely a regular performance. But it was far from that for the people back-stage. IS SELECTED AS
AMERICAN

Ralph Graves

Mack Sennett's comedy, "East of the Water Tower," which has selected Ralph Graves as its star, is now showing at the Million Dollar Theater.

Some time ago the producer decided to make a series of pictures, based upon the life of a boy who should be at the top of the list of young actors and sent a young man to look for the part. He wanted a boy who could fairly represent the best that this generation has to offer and who should be a natural actor. He wanted a boy who could take a receiving instrument provided and listen in, even as radio fans were doing clear across the country.

He is about 25 years old, 5'10" tall, weighs 170 lbs., has eyes of blue, hair of brown. He is from the Middle West. He worked around movies two years as an extra. He is not only a Hollywood actor, but a country boy. He considered taking pictures as a hobby. He considered taking pictures as a hobby. He considered taking pictures as a hobby.

COLLEGE-YOUTH Story Moves to Jazz-Age Tempo

The tempo of the jazz age is being reflected in "Daughters of Today," which is the attraction this week at the Clune Broadway. It opened yesterday.

What is shown in this picture, is believed to be the essence of the discussion about "modern youth," which still goes on in all circles where the people doing the talking are over forty. It tells the story of modern youth, its anxious grasping after the new freedom, its

SUNDAY MORNING

Mack Sennett's comedy, "East of

Los Angeles Sunday Times

IS SELECTED AS AMERICAN TYPE

ON FAMILIAR STAMPING GROUND 'LOMBARDI' IS BETTER THAN EVER

Hatton Comedy Popular as in Los Angeles Premiere of Six Years Ago

Rich in comedy of the liveliest and spiciest sort, gorgeous in its costuming, brilliant in dialogue and possessing a number of highly humorous situations, "Lombardi, Ltd." is just as great an attraction today as when it was first presented here a half-dozen years ago and the revival of this Fredrick and Fanny Hatton comedy at the Majestic proves the play to be just as popular as ever.

Tonight Leo Carrillo, the star of the play, who will always be Tito Lombardi to his numerous admirers, will begin the last week of his engagement in this fun-and-fashion revue. The popular star is compelled to return to the East a week sooner than anticipated, hence the early closing of the piece.

Carrillo has been the recipient of a splendid reception ever since the opening night of the play and his popularity in the role of the male modiste and arbiter of fashions has not waned to the slightest degree. He plays the part to perfection and his soft-voiced Italian dialect at times approaches pure music. "Lombardi" has always been Carrillo's greatest success.

As presented at the Majestic, the lavish display of feminine finery has a special attraction for the ladies, and they fairly revel in the dainty creations on view during two of the three acts as furnished by N. B. Blackstone Company of this city. It is in the clothes shop scenes that the fun making of the star is most pronounced and he is aided in a special way by three members of his original company—Ethel Wilson, Ida Rorke and Charles Welladay.

Hope Brown as Nora, the assistant, is particularly appealing, while Barbara Brown as Daisy, the mannequin, effectively adds to the fun making. Franklin Pangborn, Gladys Knorr, John Nicholson, Fanchon Everhart, Norman Fessenden, Winona Wilkes, Campbell, Jean Nash and others make up a large cast.

"Lombardi, Ltd." will close on Sunday, June 15, to be followed by Genevieve Tobin in the comedy success, "Polly Preferred."

PIANO REGARDED AS NECESSARY EVIL

Ben Alexander has always liked acting, because it is more fun than going to a pokey old school. They let him play before the camera and seldom dress him up in "stays" clothes. Even the presence of a tutor, when he reached school age, was endurable, because he loves history and geography. But now, the fly seems entangled in Ben's olivine—his mother's insistence that he study music.

Ben thought it unmanly to "one-two-three-thump" a piano, but when his mother explained that an actor should be versed in all the arts, he complied, deciding he'd learn it quickly and get it over with. In a few months he has mastered several pieces, and he plays with technical perfection, though evincing no wild love for the keyboard.

LANDIS'S NEW ROLE WHAT HE WANTED

"Tumbleweed," which has been adapted for the screen from Hal Everts' story is shortly to be pictured with Cullen Landis in the leading role. Landis followed the story as it appeared in serial form and visualized himself in the role, but never dreamed it would be his fortune to play it. But wishes sometimes come true and only recently Landis was signed and will commence work in this western special about July 1. William Nigh to direct it for First National.

"Tumbleweed" reflects the real West and the young hero Landis is to play is a regular he-man, carefree at first, quite literally a tumbleweed and then there is a magnificent regeneration with captivating love interest. It is a typical Landis role and the kind all theatergoers people adore.

Author Fails to Make Most of Occasion

J. M. Foster, who plays the part of an automobile salesman in the Morocco current success, "Six Cylinder Love," has got the salesmanship "bug."

He has become so excited about the art of persuading people to buy things, even when they don't need them, that he sees a number of other opportunities in the play for distributing the product of American factories.

"This chap, McGuire, who wrote the play, overlooked a few bits, it seems to me," says Foster. "He might have found lines for a fence-protector salesman, to bolster up that suburban fence in the first act. And then he might have worked out a part of a salesman to sell an elevator to that building of flats in which all our people end up when the loot gives out," he queried, finally.

VILLAIN RETURNS TO FAVORED ROLE

Anders Randolf has returned to the type of role which won for him the reputation of being one of the most hated villains. Having recently completed his characterization of a reclusive and woman-hater in J. Stuart Blackton's current production, "The Hill Men," he will again give one of his inimitable interpretations of a villain. Randolf has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to portray Blanchard in the forthcoming production "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood."

NATURAL APPORTIONMENT

While Ralph Lewis is wearing overalls in the Scholfield-Howard production, "Where is the Troop of Capricorn," Vera Lewis, his wife, is blossoming out several degrees ahead of her lord and master in the social scale as the prominent society matron in the Warner Brothers' production of "Corradino."

SCREEN YOUNGSTER WINS MUCH SUCCESS

Ethel Wales, with one success after another, is now the newest sensation in filmland, and her work in William De Mille's "The Bedroom Window" having brought her into the limelight as one of the most interesting "bets" of the day, Miss Wales' work has been steady and sure, while in all of her work she has consistently offered something "different."

As far back as she can remember she always "acted" for as a youngster she was always getting up "shows," word of magic sound. Later came a thorough training in stock in Milwaukee, then a Broadway season, while not quite two years ago she did her first screen work. Since then she has appeared in twenty-eight feature productions, recently going East for "Ice Bound" for William De Mille.

AMERICAN BALLET

Ernest Belcher's all-American ballet is to make its appearance in 1924.

COMEDienne WILL SING AT BENEFIT

One of the features of the Actors' Benefit performance of "Movie-Land" to be given at the Philharmonic Auditorium Saturday evening, the 11th inst., will be the musical number given by Dorothy Devore, the charming young screen star, assisted by several other attractive feminine screen luminaries.

Miss Devore has a very good voice and possesses a striking stage personality. She will execute a difficult and intricate song and dance number, which is now being rehearsed by Wedgewood Nowell who will stage "Movie Land" in addition to being its author and composer of the music. Nowell has written two new songs for Miss Devore. The actress recently took a fling at the legitimate stage in "The Morning After" at the Mason, where she proved that she was equally at home before the footlights as when acting for the Klieg lights.

All the funds from the benefit will go toward the actors' fund. Like all other artists who will take part in "Movie Land" Miss Devore is donating her services.

POOR FISH FELL HARD FOR LOUISE

Partiality of Leading Actor for Comedienne New Hollywood Scandal

Louise Fazenda, the clever little comedienne, says she has been cast with players recruited from many sources and has "supported," as she whimsically puts it, every domestic beast, many wild ones as well, as fish and fowl. But in all her world of fun for the silver-sheet, she has never played with a seal until cast by Thomas H. Ince as the Diving Venus in "The Galloping Fish."

"Not so good," thought Louise, as she viewed Freddie, the seal, for the first time at the studio. But as time passed, the little animal proved so docile and performed with such intelligence that the comedienne lost her fear and then began an interesting friendship.

In fact, Miss Fazenda made a real hit with Freddie. Understanding masculine tendencies, she kept him supplied with his favorite brand of fish. During the action of "Galloping Fish," Freddie and Louise had many scenes together and while the seal did not believe in "made-up" or "made over" from her. The cast declared, jealously, that he hardly noticed anyone else in the picture and many little jokes resulted from this partiality.

So as Miss Fazenda lists some of her favorites such as Teddie, the Big Dane, "Pepper," the Sennett cat, and Waddles, the clever duck, she now includes Freddie, the seal. He is a good old trouser, loyal old pal, and as Louise says herself, an "old dear."

Others in "Galloping Fish," which is now creating a stir at Grauman's Rialto, are Sidney Chaplin, Ford Sterling, Chester Conklin and Lucille Rickson, who willingly share honors with Freddie.

Models Aplenty for Souse Role Even This Day

Donald Brian, costar with Vivian Martin in the clever farce, "Just Married," entering its second week at the Mason Opera-house, declares that he has more models for his role of the slightly sauced voyager than he can well copy. Brian, who has been a successful musical comedy star for years, deplores the number of "models" for his character in the play that he encounters in his journeyings.

It is a lamentable fact that the young men of today are more addicted to intoxicants than was the rising generation of twenty years ago, when I still was a beginner in the profession," declares Brian. "However, I believe that I'm really doing a bit of missionary work for the cause of the Eighteenth Amendment, for it seems to me that any young man who sees into what ridiculous positions my stage souse leads me, will think twice before he lets go of himself sufficiently to become 'bunne'd' and do likewise."

Incidentally, there have been some extremely lovable 'souses' on the stage in the history of the theater. There was Sir John Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Sir Toby Belch in "Twelfth Night," Eccles in "Caste," David Garrick, who only simulated drunkenness; Rip Van Winkle of the blessed memory of Don Marquis' "The Old Soak," with Tom Wise as the tippler, Mink Jones in Hoyt's "A Temperance Story," and others.

All most likable characters, whose penchant for accumulating excessive cargoes of the 'fluid that cheers' really tends to the attractiveness without giving the slightest offense to even the most fastidious.

SACRIFICE TO BEAUTY

Bull slain in Spanish Picture for Priscilla's Honor

Allan Forrest, who played the leading male role opposite Priscilla Dean in the "Siren of Seville," and Claire de Lorea, who portrayed a Spanish vampire in the same production, have finished their work before the camera. The last scenes of the picture were taken at the bull arena in Tia Juana, where Allan Forrest, with the aid of Manuel de los Rios, a real bull fighter and also a member of the cast, entered the arena and before 15,000 people displayed his newly acquired skill in successfully mastering the Spanish sport. After the scenes for the production were taken, Manuel de los Rios, who is under contract as a bull fighter to the management of the Broadway city arena, executed his ability as a matador, downing a bull within five minutes after he had entered the ring.

As an honor to the motion-picture guests, the matador dedicated the first bull to Priscilla Dean. Allan Forrest receiving the honor when the second bull was brought in, this one proving to be the wildest animal in the pens.

THE NEW

IN STORES AND HOMES

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

BY OLIVE GRAY

Up-to-Date:

The printed-on blouse has led to the printed-on dress; quite a natural evolution. "Jiffy" is their family name, for the reason that they may be made as quickly as that quick thickening jelly. Everything trimmish is printed on, you see, and one has only to sew up two or three short seams and lo! a garment quite decorative in effect, the lace-like collar, yoke, cuffs, girdle printed in a contrasting color—apricot with blue, gray with black, coral, lavender with black, etc. In case you wish to add to the decorative appearance, you may follow the printing with hand-work in silk or wool. While blouses of this style have been on the counters for some little time, the dresses are new.

Pipe This!

For Eleanor's Mah Jong party. Aunt Jane volunteered to make the cake. And, as Bobbie declares "in cake making Aunt Jane takes the cake." Imagine, then, Eleanor's delighted surprise when the happy day arrived, to find on the service table in the butler's pantry, a big tray of those delicious little French pastries, each bearing a Mah Jong symbol! Various colors were piped on in icing, tinted to a creamy shade, resembling the ivory counters.

Boachery

No longer may one hide to the beach in just any old thing for comfort. Nor may one simply hide oneself beneath an old umbrella, careless of one's surroundings. In bathing suits, quite as much does the mode exact as in garments for street or opera. The fit, beauty and effectiveness of the suit is an opportunity for self-expression and for discriminating taste; and so, also, are the beach surroundings. For, one may almost find any must—create an atmosphere in this temporary home, would one be in the know. There is the big umbrella, of course, that has afforded for long a pleasantly shaded abiding place, much after the manner of the silken tent of the Arab, pitched in the desert sands. But, also, there must be beach chairs, colorfully striped or flowered to match the "brella; and harmonizing cushions, innumerable, as well as the beach rug, the beach cape. Small sunshades, also, for shielding the face while running along the sands. Not merely enough, of such paraphernalia for the family, should there be, but a few to spare to the passing guest. Half the fun, much of the glory of the beach stay lies in assembling these accessories which, to the artistic taste, complete the picture and add to the satisfaction of the sea-shore habitat.

Her Daintiness

I have surprised the secret of Evelyn's everlasting daintiness! Always she has the appearance of just stepping from a hand-box—one of the highly decorative picture printed hand-boxes, at that. Really quite exasperating, some of the girls declare it, to meet her when they have gone shiny-nosed and hair-straightened after a morning's shopping. Her crisp collars and cuffs are quite approachable, one might say. Ah! She snaps them on and off! I discerned the snappers inside her pockets, around her sleeves and neck. I do not mean, exactly, that she snaps on these accessories when she sees us coming! But she must see in new and fresh ones, daily. Not so difficult, you see, when they snap on, in an eye's twinkling. But some little task when they are stiched.

Under-Arms

That is merely my name for them. Those slips fashioned from knitted silk or glos, made upon long, slim lines and serving every purpose of an undergarment, shadow-proofing the form and enhancing the bulk of it. I'll tell you a secret! I made mine that way, sometimes since; and the flatterer to that small ego lurking in every one of us, however modest we believe ourselves, it was to learn that I had blazed the way for an invention. The colors of the silken knitted yardage, both in tubing and flat, are as many as one wish, so that one's gown or suit may be matched perfectly in these under-alls. One may buy them ready-to-wear.

When Hemstitching

The woman who is of the best, in hemstitching, told me a secret. "When you tell bring in your hemstitching," said she, "do not double the edge, but leave it single, then have me pivot the edge, then hemstitch it and you will find that the effectiveness and neatness far exceed the few extra cents in cost." A point to be remembered during this hemstitching season.

Whims of the Mode

Pale gardenias or orchids are worn in clusters on the shoulders of light evening gowns. A great many of the new twill coats have cape-backs and are trimmed with summer furs. Red taffeta pipings are used on a lingere frock of yellow voile worn over a slip of red taffeta. Some of the larger new hats turn up sharply on one side and swoop down on the other. There is a scarf for every costume—the tailleur—and both afternoon and evening gown. Hand embroidery, narrow ruffles of lace, tucks and fine plaits are used on the dainty voile frocks. Bands of brown suede trim a sports frock of white tasha worn with a short colorful jacket. Shaded copper ribbon is used for the girdle of a frock of embroidered net and flit in cocoa color. One may safely wear the draped turban, cloths or small hat and scarf with the tailored suit.

RIDE TO

Lean John's Goes 600 Miles North to Tell of

BY R. G. B.

This is the thrilling story of a man who, in the face of all odds, has become a hero of early days. Known among the Latin American population as Juan Flores, "John" on account of his extreme thinness, and his famous from the beleaguered fort of Angeles pueblo to San Francisco. The distance of 600 miles made in four days to bring help to the imprisoned Americans. How he was shot from under his horse and rode one horse to the next, his own personal adventures, the uncharted dangers in this country make one of the most fascinating pages in California history.

On July 7, 1846, Commodore Robert F. Stockton, in charge of the Pacific, raised the American flag on the Customs House in Monterey and took possession of California in the name of the United States. The northern and central parts of the State submitted peacefully to the southern part under the banner of Juan Flores, a man of 150 men, who refused to acknowledge the United States and defied the government by continuing to hold its own authority in Los Angeles at that time the State of California.

LAND AT SAN PEDRO
August 4, 360 sailors and men with Stockton at their command landed at San Pedro, completed preparations for the march to Los Angeles. Stockton's and Fremont's armies combined forces just outside of Los Angeles. On August 13, Gen. Castro who had been behind, abandoned his forces and fled in alarm. Gov. Pio Pico fled in alarm. Lower California and his men were in the two weeks in Los Angeles more trouble set him for Francisco, while Fremont and Archibald were in the city of fifty men were in the American interpreter and his vigorous methods of military discipline were agreeable to the easy-going Spaniards, who preferred to see until manana all the military duties of today.

He was a military man, a chafed against the rebels, then opposed his northern grudge. His different habit of thought, his religion alien to them, and would have none of them.

PIOT UPRISING
September 15 in a native Mexican town and was given a week's vacation. This occasion was a plot by the natives to murder the Americans and one week later, September 23 a rebellion broke out. A concerted attack on Gilliam's camp. The battle was fierce all night, the Americans were behind the adobe walls of their fort with such telling that the enemy was beaten with a total loss of three hundred men and wounded. The day Gilliam made a number of men among many prominent and as a result of this action, within twenty-four hours he had his hands on the revolution. Castro's old soldiers rallied to his side at their former camp at the Parthenon Blanco (White Palace) and under his advice, on October 15 in a native Mexican town and was given a week's vacation.

LAUNTS DEATH IN RECORD RIDE TO SAVE COMRADES

John' Goes From Los Angeles 600 Miles North in Four Days to Tell of Revolt, Peril

BY R. G. ROUSSEAU
This is the thrilling story of one of the many unknown, unsung heroes of early days. The story is of plain John Brown.

Among the Latin American people who are famous for their heroic deeds is Juan Pineda, who in 1571, on his famous voyage to the beleaguered fort of San Francisco, rode 600 miles in four days to bring help to the beleaguered Americans. How he was shot from under his horse and how he was rescued by his own perilous adventures in the uncharted desert in the country make one of the most interesting pages in California history.

At the time Commodore Stockton was in command of the Pacific Squadron, the American flag was hoisted on the Customs House in Monterey and took possession of California in the name of the United States.

September 24 issued their Proclamation de Valera y otros Californianos contra los Americanos (The Proclamation of Valera and other Californians against the Americans). This was signed by 300 Californian and Mexican patriots amid great enthusiasm.

The proclamation was so skillfully worded and so passionately put forth the asserted wrongs of the natives at the hands of the Americans that it at once inflamed them into a white-hot fury against their so-called oppressors. The insurgents were under command of Joseph Maria Flores, a Mexican officer.

MEANWHILE GILLISSE deemed it advisable to move from the fort and succeeded under cover of darkness in reaching a steep hill up which he and his men climbed dragging with them on carretas (wooden wheeled carts) three cannon which had been abandoned by the Americans.

It was a desperate situation. Below them on the plain were Flores and his men outnumbering the Americans six to one. The Californians had one cannon, but on account of the elevation of the hill which the Americans sought refuge they could not use it against them.

Instruction Shows Knack is Absurdly Simple

BY SYL MACDOWELL
Like the robust scholastic recruits, we are rushing to the rescue of America's declining art of oratory.

We are learning to smile happily, instead of shivering, at those terrible words: "We have with us this evening."

We are a night class in public speaking. Perhaps the Pacific Finance Building would be ablaze with class rooms tomorrow night instead of with our one.

Many prominent citizens are among the graduates of a previous series of eight weekly meetings.

Five of our class of twenty-three are women. The extension division of the University of California has given us this opportunity.

Many more should seize it. If every mute, gulping, agonized, business man realized that in sixteen hours he could become fluent, forceful and entertaining, our class would unquestionably be much larger.

BOUDOIR MIRROR OF AMERICA

CAT COMPLEXES AND COMPLEXIONS

Gloria Swanson gives a tea at which everybody is miserable except Gloria herself. . . . Fannie Hurst turns purple. . . . Mary Austin has a psychic spell—announces that she sees the souls of people as they are. . . . William De Mille looks like Savonarola after the hanging.

BY MRS. ANONYMOUS
I am sometimes moved to wonder if there is not buried in the subconsciousness of every woman a cat, or at least a kitten, with as many lives as tradition attributes to the feline of the species. Yes, I do wonder.

Gloria Swanson gave a tea the other day and of course we all expected to have a wonderful time. But—I am sure I speak truly when I say that the only woman who really enjoyed that party was Gloria herself. In fact it was the consensus of the women who were her guests that day that Gloria played a very mean little trick on us.

Now I am willing, so far as I am concerned, to agree with the men, who were willing to give Gloria the benefit of the doubt. It may have been unconscious humor or something of the kind, as I say, I am willing myself to give her the benefit of the doubt, but even so I am free to confess that I would never go to a tea of hers again. Never. I could never wholly trust her after what happened.

You see Gloria gave the tea at the movie studio out on Long Island. In one corner there was a cunning little make-believe garden with painted grass and all kinds of stagey things. We all wrote our names in chalk on the door of Gloria's little dressing-room, instead of the "brotherly usual leaving of cards. Whatever may be said of Gloria she is no bromide.

OH! THOSE LIGHTS! But the whole place was hideously illuminated with those terrifying lights they use in making motion pictures, and Gloria was all made up for them and the rest of the house like corpses.

I must have looked particularly mortified, because, having in mind the circus into which I was about to be moving, I used the stick and the rouge rather heavily just before I left home. Gloria painted blue, you see.

Fannie Hurst really did look a fright. Fannie has naturally a good complexion, smooth and fair, with real, honest-to-goodness color in her cheeks—and she showed a rich ruddy purple.

Mary Austin immediately got a psychic spell. She said the lighting lights they use in making motion pictures, and Gloria was all made up for them and the rest of the house like corpses.

FLAUNTS DEATH ON DARING RIDE

of the Americans was away in the balance that Juan Flaco quietly approached his commander and told him he was ready to try to bring assistance.

CARRIES MESSAGE

Gillispie promised him $500 and expense money if he conducted the mission successfully. He was to ride up the coast to Monterey to communicate to the officers there the plight of Gillispie and his men. Flaco agreed and was given his choice of horses and saddles. He elected to keep his own horse, but chose Lieut. San Hensley's saddle and had it carried to the house wrapped in a blanket so the Mexicans would not see it. Gillispie had given him a pair of thirty-cigarrete on which he had written: "Believe the bearer," and signed his name. Flaco mixed some of his own with the thirty-cigarrete and took them to mark with a small black spot those containing the message.

Great secrecy had to be maintained so as not to arouse suspicion, so Flaco gave out that he was going to run away as he was afraid he would be shot if he stayed. His friends called him a coward, but he only shrugged his shoulders and persisted in his purpose.

At 8 o'clock that night Flaco bade his companions good-by, gave the password to the sentinel at the gate and was off on his perilous ride. Some of the Mexicans saw him and were off in pursuit, armed with lances and spears. They followed for two miles and when within sight of a ravine or gulch opened fire. The bullet struck the horse, which maddened with pain and fright, made a desperate leap and landed safely on the other side, a distance of thirteen feet. The horse ran full speed for another two miles and fell dead. The Mexicans were obliged to turn back and could not urge their horses across.

Flaco ran twenty-seven miles to the Rancho de la Virgen, kept by Domingo Dominguez. Here he pretended to be a storekeeper who had been robbed in the night and in pursuit of the thieves. He accounted for his lack of a horse by saying he had dismounted in the brush to tighten a cinch when a trusty bear appeared and frightened the animal, which ran away. Dominguez gave him breakfast, a fresh mount and a horn of brandy.

REACHES OBJECTIVE

The following night he reached Santa Barbara, where he presented one of the marked cigarettes to Lieut. Talbot. He was given another animal and left soon after. He had not gone far when he was chased by enemy lancers and rode his horse to death escaping them. Soon after leaving the rancho of a man named Robbins, who also assisted him, fifteen Mexican lancers appeared and asked Robbins if he had seen Flaco. Robbins told them that Flaco had just gone after taking four of his best horses. The Mexicans then demanded fresh mounts for themselves, and Robbins ordered his vaquero to drive up for their inspection some horses, saddles and boots. When these, he said, were all he had left. The Mexicans departed on their own jaded mounts, following as far as Mt. San Marco, where they were obliged to return.

Flaco arrived at Arroyo Honda at the rancho of Louis Barton on September 16, and was supplied with four horses.

That night Flaco made camp between San Miguel and San Luis Obispo. Arriving at Monterey on the 25th, he was too tired and worn out to eat but went to bed after drinking a cup of coffee followed by a glass of brandy, after having ridden the distance in four days. The next morning he was told that Commodore Stockton had gone to San Francisco, and that the dispatches must be delivered to him there in person in order to obtain relief.

STARTS AGAIN

Hearing this Flaco was off again, another distance of 140 miles. This time he was mounted on an American horse owned by a man named Dye. He changed horses three times more and arrived at the pueblo of San Jose at 1 o'clock the next morning. He slept on the beach that night and when the morning dawned he delivered his message in person. On the last day of his ride he rode seven hours and forty-five minutes. He made an average of 21 1/2 miles an hour, making 600 miles in four days.

The read taken by Flaco on this famous ride was called by the Spanish "camino de herrera," or bridge path. It crossed through rocky canyons skirted precipitous cliffs, zig-zagged down the sides of chaparral-covered mountains, over sandy beaches and across long stretches of sandy mesa winding through narrow valleys, across rolling foothills, or trails as nature made them, unimproved by the hand of man.

NO PARALLEL

Historians say that Juan Flaco's ride has no parallel in history for the distance covered and the endurance. Once committed to the enterprise he could not stop; it was part of his duty to go forward. His escape from death was made possible only by the fact that he was so fortunate enough to obtain and his own intimate knowledge of the country.

Stockton's return was delayed, and Gillispie and his men were worn out by constant watching. They accepted Gen. Flaco's ultimatum to evacuate the town within twenty-four hours as the men were exhausted and supplies practically gone. They marched triumphantly out of town to the tune of beating drums and with colors proudly and defiantly flying.

Thus ended the ride of Juan Flaco, born John Brown in Carlsburg, Sweden, but as he said of himself: "Born a Swede, but a loyal American citizen." He received no compensation of any kind for his ride and died in comparative poverty and obscurity.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

at $7.50, one straw sailor at $5, one genuine Panama (the proof being the price) at $45, one velvet dress at $11.50, one fall felt at $7, one dignified winter hat at $12, another spring hat at $9, a Milan straw at $11.50, a pill helmet at $14, the ultimate available in evening hats at $22.50, golf caps to a total of $15 and motor caps to a total of $14.75. But none of those purchases was an extravagance, as that flimsy thing his wife bought was because they were simply what a man in his position had to have.

MUST DRESS WELL

Titie has to dress well because of his position in the bank. As assistant to the president, Titus Drumm, Sr., he constantly has to confer with men of affairs, and duty demands that he must not look like a hick. It is for that reason that he buys more shoes than does the average head of a family of fourteen children, and at least four times a year runs in to the city to be measured for suits, always going to the most expensive tailor.

He is so meticulously garbed that in Hollywood he might pass for a prosperous player of small parts or on Wall Mall for a belted, if not corseted, earl.

But that is merely because business demands it. And when it comes to feminine apparel his tastes are very simple. Rarely passes a day when he does not impress that on his spouse. He assures her he simply can't endure women who are conspicuous for the richness of their apparel.

GREAT HOME-BODY

He has himself marvelously under control, however, for he has never been caught saying away from such women when he met them socially. As a banker, of course, he can't.

In the matter of outings and vacations Titie is a great home-body. He thinks it idiotic for people who have comfortable homes to go to Yosemite or Yellowstone or Honolulu. He is not much of a reader but he once heard somebody quote Stevenson to effect that sight-seeing is the art of disappointment, and passes that wisdom on to his wife every time she yawns for a peep at other places. Between State and national bankers' conventions, trips and annual conclaves of various kinds, Titie has had a look or two at everything interesting between Bering Sea and Panama, Hawaii and Tahiti. But as he has gone to all these places on business he has never taken Mrs. Drumm. That might have interfered with business.

It was he who had the bank recently needed a refurnishing of mahogany shrines behind gilt grates, but when Mrs. Drumm timidly suggested that the living-room needed refurnishing, he sighed and murmured that he guessed it was in her blood and she never would learn.

IT'S HIS MONEY

Titie already has a neat competence, acquired entirely through his own acumen and enterprise in choosing his parents, and in a few years will inherit an important fortune. But he is an unusual rich man's son—he knows how to take care of money. He is governed by a sense of justice. Since he has seen what obtains the income it is only right that he spend it.

But don't dream that Titie is stingy. He spends as much as one of his means ought to every year. He merely realizes that if Mrs. Drumm spent as much as he does they'd soon be going down hill. He believes that if he didn't keep talking poor at home his inherently extravagant wife soon would ruin them. While she doesn't share his view on about the same amount he spends for cigars and cigarettes he knows that if he gave her more she would waste it on nonessentials—a thing he never does.

Everyone who knows him outside his home knows there isn't a stingy bone in Titie Drumm's body. A good many people, though, are convinced that he must be awfully close. Both she and the house are shabbier than they ought to be, and they know it can't be good for the family. Why, he's as liberal as his social day is long.

But Mrs. Drumm is philosophic. She knows her hour will come. They have a 1-year-old daughter, and she knows that when that young lady gets big enough to get married, she'll be bound to be a revolution in the domestic economy of the Titus T. Drumm.

OUT OF THE SUDS

Zazu Pitts Given Lead Role; Forthright Scrubbing Tub

For the first time in her entire screen career, Zazu Pitts is playing a straight leading role. In the last few years she has played leading character roles in many prominent pictures and her performance have been of such a caliber as to give her the reputation of a notable picture star.

Now little Zazu is a real heroine. Renaud Hoffman has her at the Hollywood Studios, playing the lead opposite Percy Marmont in the Frank Condon story, "The Legend of Hollywood," which he is producing and directing. This is the yarn which has been going the rounds of Hollywood for years and was recently published in story form. The picture as well as the story will embrace but three characters.

As a servant girl, charlady or "slavvy," Miss Pitts has probably swept more square feet of studio floor than any actress of the screen.

WORKS ON MYSTERY
William Beaudine is "shooting" an adaptation of "Coroner," a mystery play, for Warner Brothers. The production is entirely different from anything the young actor has heretofore attempted. It will be released this fall.

LITTLE FLUCTUATION

Furthermore, the production of gold has been so nicely governed by its demand that the price fluctuations are not serious. Just at present, for instance, it is not extraordinary that the world's gold is not worth what it was before the war. If I remember correctly, the value of gold measured in terms of commodities is now forty per cent of what it was. This means that the mine-owner in South Africa has to pay over twice as much in labor, machinery, and costs of refining his gold, than he did before the war. Naturally, the mining of gold has decreased, and the production this past year was $50,000,000 less than the average for the past ten years. But gradually as gold becomes more valuable, mining operations will increase.

"The United States, however," concluded Dr. Seligman, "is by no means leaving its monetary system to be governed by blind chance. More and more we are recognizing the fact that it is the function of the central banks—that is the Federal Reserve—to protect the country's business from severe peaks of inflation. We cannot follow the same plan as the English in this, for we do not have their system of 'bank holidays' in which the country's currency is increased by a certain amount, adopted a 'managed' system, by refusing to increase the country's currency in proportion to its gold stocks.

"The central banks are modifying the peak of inflation, by refusing credit when a period of serious inflation nears its peak. This frequently means abandoning an opportunity to make money for the bank, and it places a tremendous responsibility on a small group of men. But the intricate laws of international finance are better understood by experts and business men than by the mass of people."

WILL STICK TO GOLD STANDARD

in value hurts, just as much as a fall. Mr. Seligman claims that a further rise of the franc will hurt the tourist trade.

ENGLAND DIVIDED

"England also is divided. Keynes having failed to convince even his own country that a return to a gold standard is unwise. Germany, of course, can never redeem her old currency. She has a new currency, to be sure, which she calls the 'gold mark,' but this has no more relation to the old mark than the dollars which Alexander Hamilton issued after the Revolution had to the old Continental Dollars. They were called dollars, but redeemed at 100 to 1."

"How much of the world's gold is now in the United States?" I asked.

"About one-half. We have $4,500,000,000 out of the nine billion dollars in the world. It is true that this vast amount of gold on our hands means a loss to us."

M. Keynes has presented some figures to that effect. Prof. Seligman replied thoughtfully. "And in a way, we do lose something. He points out that the United States is the only country which continues the prewar practice of accepting gold. And while the value of gold has fallen by about 40 per cent, we still maintain our old rate of value. This is, our mint still accept gold for coinage at $20.67 per troy ounce. This means that the world can ship for it than in any other country. If the South African gold miners shipped gold to France, for instance, it would be accepted and paid for in francs at the present low rate, which is about one-fourth of what it was when the gold was mined. Or, if shipped to the Scandinavian countries, it would not be accepted at all. Sweden has, or had until recently, an embargo against the import of gold."

GOLD'S HANDICAP

"Because an increase in gold means increased currency and credit, and a corresponding rise in prices," Prof. Seligman explained.

"Why does the United States not suffer a corresponding inflation from its great supply of gold?" I asked.

"Because our Federal Reserve Board very wisely does not allow all of this gold to get for the circulation. The gold is held by the Federal Reserve System is required by law to be 40 per cent. The recent unprecedented import of gold, ordinarily would have permitted the banks to increase their currency circulation to a corresponding level, which in turn would have brought inflation, high prices and unemployment. Instead of issuing new notes for this gold, however, the banks simply kept the gold in government vaults, so that the gold reserve, instead of being 40 per cent of the note circulation, is now 52 per cent."

"Of course, there is a loss of interest upon the gold which is lying idle in Washington, which J. M. Keynes estimated at one-half a billion dollars a year. Personally, I believe his figure is a little fantastic, but this loss certainly is better than the alternative inflation and rise in prices."

"Is there no way by which we can put our gold surplus to work?" I suggested.

USE FOR OUR GOLD

"I think we can best hold it as a reserve for world reconstruction," Prof. Seligman returned, after some thought. "One by one the countries of the world will turn to us for financial help in carrying out their reconstruction programs. Germany will be the first. When we raise the German loan for the Dawes plan—as we undoubtedly will since the President's speech—we shall use some of this gold as a basis for the loan. Later when France and England are ready to rejuvenate their countries, they can draw on this gold. Thus we can keep it working."

"What is your opinion," I asked, "of the contention of European economists that the world's gold supply will soon be exhausted and that the fluctuating supply of gold must lead to its abandonment?"

"Gold will not soon be exhausted," was Dr. Seligman's vigorous rejoinder. "There are vast untapped supplies of gold in Africa, Asia, Siberia, Alaska and Australia. Even should the mines be exhausted, gold is never lost as iron and other metals are. Our store is constantly increased and never used up."

TELLS PART OF FATE IN JUSTICE

we learn that this third feller is dead.

PAIR FIND CORPSE

"Two of these three miners have woke up after their night of carousing and found the third feller laid out in the brush half frozen to death. Not only that but they soon see that their partner layin' over there in that other pile of carcasses is nothing more nor less than a complete casualty."

"They talk it over and then here they come walkin' this course between them into this saloon."

"Just what their idea could have been I don't know. I don't suppose they could see how the play was goin' to turn out and knowin' Cousin Jack as I do, it's my guess that, andin' they was broke, they just hit on this scheme to get a drink for nothin'."

"In any event the play seems regular enough to us, standin' there again in the bar. To us it just looks like two drunk men leadin' a drunker one between them."

LEAVE DEAD TO PAY

"Then they drink their whiskey and walk out, leavin' this third feller leasin' against the bar to pay for the drinks."

"This bird not makin' a move, Forest walks up to him and says: 'Why don't you drink your drinker?'"

"This feller don't answer, and Forest says: 'Drink your drink, your drinker bum, and get to bed out of here.'"

"But this guy don't make a move and Forest hauls off and hits him with the head with the board-starter."

"Of course, this feller falls down and when he don't get up 'Mose Billard and Bob run over and pick him up."

"Why, Forest, you've killed the man," says Anderson.

"Well, he drew a knife on me," says Forest.

"The committee has a meetin' right then and after allowin' this Forest time enough to get some breakfast, we takes him out and hangs him."

"It is not until I runs on to one of these Cousin Jacks over in Los Angeles ten years later that any of us knows that we hung a feller for killin' a man that's already dead."

REALLY A BIG JOB

On the other hand, the Hon. Frances Marion Brandon is of quite a different type. She has a permanent wave; wears long ear-rings, chains and other decorations. She had on a very modish brown georgette gown, dipped where Fifth avenue says the gowns should dip. Her hat was a wide brown velvet picture model, suggestive of Gainsborough, with a handsome plume of brown, shaded into blue, all dropping off the side. Frances has big brown eyes.

She has a big job, having been appointed by Mayor Hylan assistant coroner, counsel of the City of New York. She is, of course, she takes herself very seriously.

So would you, if you had that job and looked like that. Really Frances is a good looking. Even women admit that.

Well, in introducing her Amy stuck to facts. Lawyers are terribly literal. I suppose, she said, the "learned counsel," referring, of course, to Frances, was a woman of whom we could all be proud.

She said the "learned counsel" had "pulled herself up by the boot straps," as it were.

"When I first knew her," she continued, "she was a cash girl in a department store."

She got it over to the audience that she had been a time Frances was around 21 years of age. Then she carefully and literally traced the course of the "learned counsel" until she had made her point, about as old as Amy looked.

Now, considering the "learned counsel" was dressed in the key of the occasion, through, it did seem just a trifle—well, would you call that caty or not? Personally my sympathy was with Frances.

Now that she is somebody in the big world of things, why true backward to that department-store job? Why didn't Amy look forward to the brilliant career which she has now? It is a question which she has asked herself many times.

Use Lemons to Whiten Skin

The only way to get the skin white is to use lemon juice. It is the most wonderful skin whitener ever discovered. It is so simple to use that even a child can do it. It is so effective that it will whiten the skin in a few days. It is so safe that it will not hurt the skin in any way. It is so cheap that it is within the reach of everyone. It is so good that it is the only skin whitener you need.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ARTHUR MILLER

Music. My idea may be entirely too flippant. Perhaps people are really impressed by the solemn musty atmosphere of the art museum, and thus, in some mysterious way are made ready to experience aesthetic emotion. They take their art dancing with such deadly seriousness perhaps they like their art that way too. Nevertheless I propose that workmen at once replace the cold cement floor of the art museum with good slippery hardwood, and the county invite dancing parties among the paintings and sculptures. Cannot you see young Geraldine, flushed with happiness, leading her entranced partner among the pictures between dances? They are stirred up, they are ready to enjoy anything. What more reasonable than to place art in their way!

PRIZES AWARDED

WESTERN PAINTERS

The two $1000 prizes offered in the Third Exhibition of Western Painters were awarded as follows: The Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs Purchase Prize went to Benjamin C. Brown for his painting, "Toemite, Witchery of Wintu." A special jury chose five paintings from the Los Angeles quota and five from San Francisco and San Diego groups. The Los Angeles Museum Purchase Prize was awarded to Joseph Raphael of San Francisco for his canvas, "The Japanese Doll." This painting will be added to the permanent collection of paintings in the Los Angeles Museum. Honorable mention was given to Armin Hansen for his "Veppers," to Robert Reid's "Reflections," to Jack Wilkinson Smith for "Opal Surf" and to Edouard Vysekai for "The Sisters."

IS SARGENT GREATEST?

BY ANTONY ANDERSON
(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

CHICAGO, June 4.—The vagabond blood is in me, now that I am stepping out on my native heath, and I go where chance and fancy may lead me. But let us avoid this serious young woman who is conducting a class of high school flappers through the galleries of the Chicago Art Institute at a price rivaling that of the business men. She is hard to elude, and her strident voice, declaiming on this period and that in art, is not easily obliterated, but by clever maneuvers we can escape her. Not Sargent, the artist, and indubitably he is right. We may admit that from the small collection sent out to the art institute from the huge retrospective exhibition held in New York, even though comparatively few of the American master's highest achievements are shown. But we have the delightful portrait of Ada Rahan, who, you remember, played opposite John Drew for so many years at Daly's in New York; the brilliant sketch of Joseph Jefferson's vivid face; the exquisitely toned small portrait of Miss Katharine Pratt; the portraits of William M. Chase, Mrs. J. William White and Mrs. Charles Gifford Dyer, as well as three or four Venetian interiors of great beauty and subtlety.

The Chase portrait, a full length, reminds me of something I heard in this very institute about another before the portraits, and the younger stooped down and studied the brass plate on the frame. "This," she said, "seems to be the picture of a man named Chase by a man named Sargent." Then she passed on without a second glance—yet the portrait was one of Sargent's triumphs.

The most intriguing part of the Sargent exhibit is the water colors. In this little collection Sargent shows his mastery with concise bravado, and at the same time with an engaging naivete. Especially delightful are the studies from the South Sea Islands: "The Bathing," male nude reclining figures that are superb in the simplicity and power of their modeling; "Muddy Alligators," the bellies of the slimy brutes swollen to bursting in the sun; "Shady Path," greens and blues of a sparkling vitality.

But superlatively good as some of Sargent's water colors are, I think a few by Winslow Homer

OLD NEW YORK PROJECTED

Edith Wharton in a Quartet of Brilliant Novels Shows the Smug Propriety, the Hidebound Mediocrity and the Spiritual Emptiness of Our Forebears

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

OLD NEW YORK, FALSE DAWN, THE OLD MILD, THE SPARK, NEW YEAR'S DAY, by Edith Wharton. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

In these four stories of novel-length—running from 10,000 to 30,000 words—Mrs. Wharton mirrors the life of New York society in four successive decades, beginning with the forties.

"False Dawn," the best of this brilliant quartet, tells the story of that Lewis Stacey, meek young man, who was sent on the grand tour by his father, self-imposed dictator of taste and of every detail of family life. It was Lewis's mission to acquire culture and to make it evident by his selection of a group of pictures which were to become the foundation of the "Hayes collection" of old masters.

How Lewis, once away from his father's domination, discovered with the aid of the young student and his friend Rosetti, beauty in the work of artists as yet unknown—the Italian primitives—and brought home to his father, feeling certain that his father could not fail to see their merit, is the selection of the story.

But Mr. Stacey failed to see anything but that his son had failed to follow instructions, had, in a way, gone after false gods. So he promptly disinherited him, and then passed on to his reward.

Lewis, who had been brought into the world to be the heir to the Hayes millions, was thus left stranded with a few thousands, but he chose one to marry—Frances, who was poor, but whose life was to be the story of the quartet.

"The Old Mild" Charlotte Lovell is made to corrode and to take on the attributes of the standard old maid of the period, as the time of her illegitimate child, the lovely Tina, was adopted by Charlotte's cousin, who was a devoted mother, that has yet been told.

"The Spark" is a story of the sixties that dips into the period of the nineties, with its pole playing and its gambling and its "affairs" and its other eddy up and down preoccupations.

"New Year's Day" as a picture of high society in the seventies is a masterpiece. Viewed in one light it tells how Lizzie Hazelden acquired her reputation for being "bad" and how she chose to live up to it for the rest of her life.

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

Looked at from another angle, it is the story of a great love that persisted long after its object was his grave.

It has for so short a book, an astounding number of tensely dramatic scenes. First, there is that in the forties, when Lizzie Hazelden, in which the old Fifth avenue hotel was burned. And from the burning building Lizzie Hazelden and Henry Frost were seen by competent witnesses to emerge together.

Then there is the one in which Lizzie Hazelden, the direct descendant of the powerful Mrs. Weston, takes it standing, and retakes it by exerting her charm for the upper world on Mrs. Weston's callow son. In a different key is the last scene between Lizzie and her dying husband, in which a love beyond life is revealed in the briefest words.

Beautifully ironic is that scene between Henry Frost, the urbane whited sepulcher, who comes to renew his relations with Lizzie, finds a pitfall in order, and makes it, only to learn just where he belongs in her life.

End papers and labels for each book are by Edward C. Caswell, and the unique wrappers and gift box reproduce a wall-paper that was in the house of old New York in the 1850's.

DUKE AND ANNUNZIO

Luigi Pirandello says that the last tragedy of Eleanor Duse's life lay in the fact that she was distracted by the only theater that her time offered her that was harmonious with her temperament—the theater of Ibsen.

In a singularly keen and sympathetic study of her life and art, the Italian playwright, says that Duse had outgrown the commonplace characters of her early triumphs just about the time that Ibsen was beginning to talk about Ibsen. He says, however, that her first approach to Ibsen was timid.

The perfect and complete understanding of Ibsen's part of the heroic spirituality contained in Ibsen's theater—qualities, which would fully have satisfied this artist, at that time in the fullest possession of her powers—was made impossible by the distracting influence she now began to feel through contact with the spectacular and the "theatrical" of Gabriele d'Annunzio.

To my way of thinking—an opinion that I have reached by believing in the many people in Italy—the atmosphere of d'Annunzio's theater did harm rather than good to Eleanor Duse, and great harm, indeed. Perhaps, from the esthetic demands of her inner life, she was not able to resist a violent distortion on her art, which had once been so intimate and so profound, throwing her into false attitudes which only time, and too tardily, has been able to correct.

"I should not risk asserting that the physical collapse of Eleanor Duse, and especially her growing fearfulness with stage life, should be attributed to the futile effort she made to adapt her own art to the art of d'Annunzio. But I am willing to state that the d'Annunzio episode was not without effect upon her career as an actress. There can be no doubt that Duse, at the peak of her development, was distracted by the d'Annunzio theater, and that the real dramatic grandeur that her time might have offered her—the theater of Ibsen, I mean, which was surely far more harmonious with Duse's artistic temperament and with the need she has always had for breathing a clear and rarefied atmosphere in the most lofty altitudes of the spirit."

TWO IMPORTANT BIOGRAPHIES

BY M. F. CUMMINGS

J. RAMSAY MACDONALD, THE MAN OF TOMORROW, by Lillian C. Ford. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

W. GILBERT, HIS LIFE AND LETTERS, by Sidney Dark and Leonard Grey. The George H. Doran Company, New York.

This anonymous author informs us that he has been moved to attempt this description and analysis of Ramsay MacDonald because there is no other man in public life today who, as a personality, is so little known to the ordinary reader. The present British Premier, by the way, was only a prospective Prime Minister when this book, which is one-third biography, another third rhapsody, and the balance prophecy, was written.

Although MacDonald was born in poverty, many favoring circumstances environed his early years. He was brought up by his paternal grandfather, a beautiful and highly intelligent woman, whose memory was a rich and varied—storehouse of knowledge and whose influence was as good as a library. Also, his first teacher was a Dominie of the old Scottish type, well versed in the classics and in mathematics, and whose sternness determined to do all that was humanly possible for the mentally gifted child.

While at the same time keeping a keen eye on exceptionally bright specimens, whose gifts must be carefully developed, the watchmaker of young MacDonald's acquaintance early recognized the lad's quality and placed a small but valuable collection of the works of Scottish scientific writers at his service. Thus the youth was well started on the broad highway of general culture, so that when he later came in touch with the revolutionary series of discoveries then being made in the realms of biology and physics he was mentally prepared to take up that series of scientific conquests, which he promptly entered, and which mightily appealed to his eminently practical nature.

His scientific interest, the Soph. Kensington tests, but an untimely illness prevented him from attending to the course upon which, if gained, would have relieved him of the necessity of earning his bread, while pursuing his studies. Following his recovery he became the private secretary of Thomas Lough, a Glaswegian laborer who had been a member of the P.E.N. Club, the international organization of poets, playwrights, editors, essayists and novelists which met in New York City last week dedicated itself to obtaining the Nobel prize for literature for Thomas Hardy.

LITERARY GOSSIP

A new novel by Rupert Hughes, entitled "The Golden Ladder," was published last week by Harper. Mr. Hughes has built his story around a real historical character, Betty Jewel, who was bred in a New York family, and who, during the days in one of the most beautiful historic homes in New York, the Vice-President Aaron Burr, whom she married late and divorced early.

The P.E.N. Club, the international organization of poets, playwrights, editors, essayists and novelists which met in New York City last week dedicated itself to obtaining the Nobel prize for literature for Thomas Hardy.

Margaret Cameron, whose new novel, "John-Banner," was just published by Harper, is Mrs. Harrison C. Lewis, wife of a successful New York business man. She was born in New York, and came to California while still a child, and lived in Santa Barbara, the scene of her latest novel, "before the railroad came. She taught music for several years before she was induced by an English instructor to try her hand at writing fiction.

"The Pines of Lory," by the late John A. Mitchell, founder of "Life" and author of "Amos Judd," has just been republished by Bobbs-Merrill. Edward Sanford Martin, author of "The Edin Pedlar" and "Life," has written an introduction to the new edition.

Mollie Panter-Downes, who at 16 wrote "The Shoreless Sea," a London best seller published recently in this country by the Putnam, is at work on a new novel which is to be brought out in the fall by Murray's in London. Although she is now 50, Mollie is 16 years by no means the youngest author on the Putnam list. This honor is held by Helen Douglas, the author of "The Edin Pedlar" and "Life," who has written an introduction to the new edition.

Stella, one of the largest film producers in England, are making a special short feature picture of Gilbert Frankau, the author of "Gerald Cranston's Lady," etc., entitled "A Day in the Life of England's Most Popular Novelist." The unusual undertaking is due to the sensational success of the first-mentioned book, which has lifted Frankau quite to the topmost wave of popular success.

How to be happy, though civilized, has become the most insistent problem of contemporary life, writes Clayton Hamilton, describing his adventures in Honolulu in a most fascinating article "An Old New England City in the Pacific" in the June Century. "Honolulu is the happiest city that I have ever known, because, by virtue of its geographical aloofness, it has managed to remember so many things that have been forgotten elsewhere in the hurry-burry of the modern world."

The 350 copies of the limited edition of Robert Frost's "New Hampshire" were exhausted soon after publication, and are now offered by rare-book dealers at double their cost.

Two new books on health are listed by the Putnam. "Physical Education for Daily Life" is a treatise by Dr. C. Ward Crampton, a specialist in health building. The book is illustrated with many photographs and drawings. The effect of sunlight as a curative agent is discussed at length in "Sunlight and Health," by Dr. C. W. Saleeby, who was one of the pioneers in the extensive study of the sun's rays.

"My Life" purports to be the simple story of a Russian peasant woman, Tolstoy, who revised and corrected it, insisted that it come from the lips of the peasant Anisya. Some critics are insistent that it was a creation of Tolstoy's, published and censored in 1902, it has just been translated by Tol-

THE GREAT LIBRETTIST

BY M. F. CUMMINGS

Sir William Schwenck Gilbert, author of the inimitable "Bah, Balleed" and librettist of that enduring popular series of comic operas of which Arthur Sullivan composed the music, was born on November 18, 1835, and claimed descent from Mr. Humphrey Gilbert. This famous descendant of an illustrious great-great-grandfather was educated at King's College, intending to finish at Oxford. But when he was 15 and the Crimean War was at its height commissions in the Royal Artillery were thrown open to competitive examination. So giving up all idea of a scholastic career Gilbert hastily took the necessary B.A. at the University of London and proceeded to "bone" for the coming examination. But the war came to its abrupt end, and therefore no additional officers were needed and the examination was not held. "If the war had lasted another year," he wrote, "I should have been a barrister-at-law."

But the war did not last another year, and Gilbert was not a barrister-at-law. He was a dramatist, and he wrote comedies, farces, operas and extravaganzas never before had by any dramatist. ## OFF FOR EUROPE

An exodus for Europe on the part of the younger Scribner authors seems to be under way. Stark Young, whose "The Three Fountains" records a series of impressions acquired in the course of a recent Italian visit, has gone again to Italy to devote a period of quiet to writing. F. Scott Fitzgerald has sailed for France with his wife, Fitzgerald and his daughter, Patricia. For a story which may lengthen into a novel, he has taken with him the manuscript of a novel which is nearing completion. Struthers Burdett, whose first novel, "The House," is one of the most successful of the season, will shortly for France with his wife, Burdett and his daughter, Patricia. He is planning to remain abroad for a year.

THE GUN-LESS WEST

David Grey, author of "The Coyote" (Scribner), a novel of the Alameda prairie, says that in all his life in the West he never met a gun-toter, or any of the stock characters of Western fiction. His novel is probably the only Western story that hasn't at least one flash of a gun. His book tells the story of Bailey Bellard, a hermit nicknamed "The Coyote," and of a real coyote of the prairie.

A STORY OF ACHIEVEMENT

BY THOMAS F. FORD

MAADOO, THE MAN AND HIS HISTORY, by Thomas F. Ford. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

It is difficult to consider a candidate for the nomination for the Presidency in any but a political and partisan light. But when one reads this account of the achievements of a man brought up in obscurity and given no special advantages, one places it beside such other accounts of American success as "The Americanization of Edward Bok," "From Immigrant to Inventor" and other like examples of opportunity in America.

In the author dramatically presents the inside story of McAdoo's part in the building of the Hudson River tunnels, the contest between the Treasury Department and the United States and the National City Bank, the establishment of the Federal Reserve System, the risk insurance, Federal Farm Loan Board, the cotton loan fund, the Liberty loan campaign, merchant marine acts, loans to the Allies, the conduct of the railroad administration and a host of other official activities in which Mr. McAdoo, as Secretary of the Treasury, took a prominent part.

McAdoo played a leading part in one of our greatest national dramas, and the series of letters herein produced, written by him to President Wilson and other members of the Wilson administration, are excellent examples of material that the historian will find valuable and illuminating on many points connected with the conduct of the World War.

To say that Mr. McAdoo carried a tremendous burden of responsibility during the war is to say that he has been called upon in a great crisis to shoulder a heavier load. As to the author's account of the war, it is a masterpiece of precision and logic. This, coupled with the fact that he is an architect of achievements, as well as a deeply rooted sense of duty, makes his book one of solid value.

Particularly must one commend Mr. Gilman's workmanlike manner of his subject. Are you interested in Tudor and Jacobean architecture? Then, under chapters or subchapters devoted to these subjects, you will find information on everything from the architecture of the Tudor and Jacobean periods to the architecture of the Tudor and Jacobean periods.

LITERARY GOSSIP

A new novel by Rupert Hughes, entitled "The Golden Ladder," was published last week by Harper. How to be happy, though civilized, has become the most insistent problem of contemporary life, writes Clayton Hamilton, describing his adventures in Honolulu in a most fascinating article "An Old New England City in the Pacific" in the June Century. "Honolulu is the happiest city that I have ever known, because, by virtue of its geographical aloofness, it has managed to remember so many things that have been forgotten elsewhere in the hurry-burry of the modern world."

ARTICLE No. 26

One of the best ways to test your knowledge of correct bidding is to take a series of problem hands and talk over the correct bidding of each with your immediate circle of friends. You will be surprised at the difference of opinion as to the proper bidding of even simple hands. It is this very difference of opinion, however, that makes the game so interesting and fascinating. After deciding upon the proper bid in each hand, make a note of it so that you will be in a position to compare with the writer's opinion in the next article. There is no better way to size up your game.

In all of the following test hands, Z is the dealer, Y his partner and A-B his opponents:

Hand No. 1
Hearts—A, 9, 4
Clubs—A, 2
Diamonds—Q, 9
Spades—Q, 9, 8, 5, 3, 2

Score: Y-Z, a game in Z bids one spade, A bids two clubs, and Y and B pass. Z bids two spades. A bids three clubs, Y and B again pass. Z now bids three spades and A and Y pass. What should B say?

Hand No. 2
Hearts—A, 5, 7, 6
Clubs—Q, 7
Diamonds—K, J, 9, 4
Spades—Q, 9, 2

Score: Y-Z, game and 20; A-B, 6. Z bids one diamond. What should A say?

Hand No. 3
Hearts—9, 8, 6, 5, 4
Clubs—A, 10, 8, 7, 6, 5
Spades—None

Score: Rubber game, Y-Z, 14; A-B, 0. Z bids one spade and A passes. What should Y say?

Hand No. 4
Hearts—A, 6, 2
Clubs—K, J, 8, 4, 3
Diamonds—Q, 10, 9, 7
Spades—4

No score. What should Z as dealer say?

Hand No. 5
Hearts—J, 8
Clubs—K, 6, 4
Diamonds—A, K, Q, J, 5, 4, 3, 2
Spades—4

Y has bid three hearts and B has bid the jack of spades. How can Y now make game? (Four odd), at hearts against any defense? B's proper opening is the jack of spades, which Z, the dummy, should trump, then leading the ace of diamonds on which Y should discard the eight of clubs. He should now lead the jack of clubs from Z's hand and when A plays the queen, he should trump and lead another spade and trump in Z's hand. He should now lead the king of spades. How can B be should discard a spade? If A plays the ace of clubs, he should trump and lead the good club on which Y should discard a spade. Played in this way, Y should score a game in hearts, making five heart tricks in his own hand, three heart tricks in Z's hand and one club and one diamond trick.

Staff exemplified the initiatory degree on a class of eighteen candidates.

I've been married to you times that at wonderful parties, the three men present didn't want to imagine my

"What was it?" and they

was not any more embarrassing was to get a dress suit, and I never was able to do it."

Lewis said, "meaning 'ab-

FALLS INTO TRAP
the other night I went gas strin, good-looking and very nice. Had a new dress as well into the living room, myself in the Morris chair and the girl sitting on the floor, and the dishes straightened up the kitchen and came in and myself herself on the arm of the chair.

"You," she says, in a tone of surprise, "said there was a touch of gas strin. You know what that means?" Lewis said, "I mean it's from silk," I says, thinking of the blushing.

"You," she says, "I've been telling you something for myself and I'm now and get a dress suit. If you won't get a dress suit I'll get it for you."

"You're a put" but in Hurrah and out, the elect.

"Not a word," she declared, as she saw I was about to start talking. "I've been listening to a lot of bromides about you're not wanting to look like a saxophone player in a jazz orchestra, or that you're wearing an expensive suit is to keep them from confusing you with the waiters. I've had these and all the rest of your stock phrases."

"Listen, honey," she went on,
"you're a wonderful fellow in some ways and in others you're a male Duke. I've been married to you for all these years that the reason I've wanted you to get a dress suit was because I thought you were doing something I wanted. I've really been very patient with you and yourself. You know it doesn't hurt you in a while to mingle with the waiters! But you can't do that and go down to a real party as a masquerader."

"We're invited to a swell New Year party," she says, she continued, and I've already accepted the invitation. 'But,' she says, 'you won't be able to get by the door-keepers unless you're properly dressed.'"

...MORE ARGUMENTS
"It won't cost much," she says, going into high so that I couldn't stop her. "You know, that evening dress of mine that's been hanging in the closet and has been in and out of style twice since I bought it without me ever having worn it, is back in style again. I can wear it. You can buy a tux if you won't stand for a dress suit, and I'll wear it. I'll wear it and have a wonderful time. I haven't asked you to do anything for me except to bring the New please do this little favor!"

"I'll bet you weakened and bought the tux," Hurrah declared, and I said, "I don't blame you much. I guess that's the only thing I can do for you. Anyway, getting the tux ought to stop the argument."

"You're a little thought," Lewis answered. "It did stop the argument, but started two or three more. When Mrs. Lewis said she wasn't going to wear a dress, I said, 'You mean that she wouldn't like to buy anything except some stockings, slippers to match, a handkerchief and a hand and a namental comb for her hair and a few other little inexpensive items.'"

"I'm really shocked have a new corset," she added, "this one I'm wearing is positively a menace.
Women have started cancers with corsets. I've seen a woman have to get a new one in a few weeks anyway, so I might just as well get this. It won't go in until of that," she sighed, "I'm

"Yes," replied. I know

representative examples. Perhaps our museum directors, in the west, would be willing to bring such an exhibition if those, who are interested mail their requests to them.

Artists Consume Banquet

Fin Frolich, sculptor and presiding genius of the Norse studios, tendered a banquet to his fellow-members of the Painters' and Sculptors' Club at his newly opened Latin Quarter Cafe in Hollywood. Following the banquet, Abbot Kinney and Herman Brown of the city of Venice, offered the famous Ship Cafe to the artists for a head-quarters, with other inducements to artists to reside in the beach city.

The club's log-book was opened with a speech by the president, John Cotton, and charter members inscribed their signatures. Report has it that F. Graydon Sarge, deeply moved by the dancing of a mermaid, captured on Venice sands and imported for the occasion, that he was unable to deliver his carefully prepared speech.

The Painters' and Sculptors' Club, which embraces a number of good men, opens its first exhibition at the Stendahl Galleries tomorrow.

Summer Exhibition

The Cannell & Chaffin Galleries open tomorrow a special exhibition of the works of both eastern and western painters, different examples of whose work are to be on exhibition for some months. The showing will consist mostly of small and moderate sized canvases, and contains works by such important painters as William Ranger, George Elmer Brown, Robert Vennok, William Wendt, and a long and distinguished list of other painters.

A detailed black and white woodcut-style illustration of a dog's head, likely a spaniel. The dog has a white blaze running down the center of its face, with dark speckles on the white areas. Its ears are large, dark, and floppy, framing the face. The fur is rendered with fine, dense lines, giving it a textured appearance. The dog's eyes are dark and looking forward. The overall style is characteristic of 19th-century book illustrations.

She died there—“Thanking God to be in the arms of” “dear Sister.” The sisterhoods in these out-of-the-way places specialize in succoring women who once despised women, men’s women, women who staked their lives on the high seas and lost as youth faded. There are even plenty of sisterhoods within the confines of civilization that specialize in the same consolation.
